PLEA FOR HELP

A fireman yells for help from the fire escape of a five-story Des Moines apartment building Wednesday. Four persons died, including Vivian Rand, whose body is on the platform above the fireman. Ten others were injured.

Still holding hostage

Gunman's lawyers studying immunity offer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A vengeance-seeking gunman, thinking he is "a marked man" for life, continued to hold a hostage in a booby-trapped apartment today while his lawyers studied an offer of immunity from prosecution.

Anthony G. "Tony" Kiritsis asked this morning that his attorneys examine the immunity papers which local prosecutors approved in an effort to break the tense standoff which began Tuesday at Kiritsis' apartment.

The papers, read to the gunman Wednesday night from an apartment across the hall, were picked up and delivered to the lawyers by Kiritsis' brother, James.

A spokesman for negotiators said there was no reason to believe Kiritsis would issue any new demands, and authorities were hopeful the ordeal would end when Kiritsis' attorneys verified the documents.

"He (Kiritsis) is optimistic. We're optimistic," the spokesman said.

In a predawn telephone interview with WIBC radio news director Fred Heckman, to whom Kiritsis has spoken several times in the past two days, Kiritsis said, "I've already lost all my self-respect. I'm going to be a marked man all my life."

Kiritsis also told Heckman he was angered by reports that there were no records of his ever working at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

"I was an advisor to the instructors there," he said.

Frustrated police and sheriff's deputies maintained their vigil near the building. Occasionally, one or two uniformed officers walked between a large bus used as a police command center and a neighboring building where the sheriff's department set up headquarters.

A friend took a copy of the immunity offer Wedneday night to the apartment where Kiritsis held executive Richard O. Hall hostage, said George Martz, spokesman for police negotiators.

Martz said the friend read the offer through the boobytrapped front door to Kiritsis, who told him that he didn't want to think about it then and preferred to wait until morning.

Martz said the document, signed by a deputy prosecutor, offered "total immunity" from arrest or psychiatric confinement to Kiritsis, the 44-year-old bachelor who took Hall prisoner on Tuesday morning as part of a plan for revenge against the mortgage company.

"Tony has given us four demands and we met all of them," said Martz.

Authorities learned that Kiritsis recently bought 100 pounds of dynamite and police said they believed his declaration that the apartment has been rigged so that it could blow up.

"We felt it was more than a possibility that the dynamite would be set off," said Martz, a deputy Marion County prosecutor.

Tax assessment freeze called bonanza for property owners

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

A freeze on residential property assessments in Los Angeles County was described today as a "bonanza" for homeowners by one valley official, while others said the action would not have a major impact on city governments and school boards.

Los Angeles County Tax Assessor Philip E. Watson surprised officials here and throughout the county Wednesday when he declared at least a two-year moratorium on the reassessment of residential properties.

"It's definitely a break for homeowners and renters. I'd call it a bonanza," said Pomona Mayor Ray Lepire this morning.

Lepire was unsure what financial impact the assessor's action would have on the city, but City Finance Director Bob Otto minimized its effect.

"It's premature to make any judgements, but there are so many other sources of revenue beyond the property tax I certainly wouldn't call it alarming," said Otto.

Local school district officials felt the same way.

"We're taking a look at it, but it's not going to have as great an impact as it would have two or three years ago when school districts were more reliant on property taxes," said Charles Carpenter, Pomona School District superintendent.

Claremont School Board President Arthur Steffen said it would be difficult to predict the effects of the moratorium until more is learned about state-mandated changes in school financing.

"The school tax rate is affected, in part, by the assessments. But there are so many other factors as well," said Steffen.

County Supervisor Peter Schabarum said Watson's action would have a major impact on the county's budget.

He predicted the freeze could leave the county $90 million short of anticipated revenues this year.

"It poses some interesting questions about this year's budget formula. I certainly would have appreciated some advance notice," said Schabarum.

Valley officials may be less concerned than others around the county because of the current housing boom in the valley, which appears headed toward another banner year in La Verne, Claremont, and even Pomona.

The freeze will not apply to new construction, which will be going on to the tax rolls for the first time.

Last year, for example, the total assessed valuation in La Verne jumped by 35 per cent. Little of that was due to reassessment. It was based mostly on new construction.

Watson's action is in response, he said, to new state legislation requiring that all property in a county be reassessed at least once before any property could be reassessed a second time.

The assessor contended that with his present staff it would be impossible to meet that demand before 1980 or 1981, hence the moratorium.

About half of the county's residential properties were reassessed last year, and about 200,000 reassessments were already in the works for this year and will now be canceled.

What it means to the homeowner is this: if none of the local taxing agencies, such as city or schools, raise the tax rate, homeowners will pay the same taxes for the next two years without any increase.

There may be a legal challenge to Watson's action, which some critics say is politically motivated.

Watson is up for re-election next year, while the moratorium would still be in effect.

In addition, Watson's office is under investigation by the board of supervisors and has also had stiff criticism from other sources over reassessment practices.

Bystanders helpless

4 die in apartment blaze

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A woman who begged for rescue from a fire escape and the daughter she held in her arms were among the four people who died as fire gutted a decaying apartment building.

"God, the look on her face," said one of the helpless bystanders.

At least 10 were injured in the Wednesday blaze, including a man who jumped from a fourth-floor window.

Vivian Rand, 26, perished as she begged someone to save her daughter, Sonya, 5, who died later of burns at University Hospitals in Iowa City.

The first fire truck on the scene had been inspecting buildings nearby. Eyewitnesses said it had no ladders, and firemen stood nearly helpless as occupants screamed for help and dropped children to persons on the ground before leaping themselves.

"I saw people hanging on fire escapes and dropping to the ground," said Jay Furnas, 20, the building manager. "Others were jumping from windows."

Jim Furnas, 18, his brother, said he was on the ground as Mrs. Rand screamed, "Save my baby, save my baby" from a third floor fire escape. Furnas said he and others tried to talk the woman into climbing down, but she refused, saying the metal handrails were too hot.

"She had the child in her hands. As I stood there, she screamed and started to burn," Furnas said.

Furnas said firemen later managed to get to the child, but left the mother's body "to go after somebody who was alive."

The child was taken to a Des Moines hospital and later flown to the burn center at University Hospitals in Iowa City, where she died of her burns.

The other two victims, whose bodies were taken from a fourth floor apartment, were identified as Nellie Hall, 55, and Larry Gene Thomas, 28.

The H-shaped, turn-of-the-century brick and wood building had 98 residents in 44 units, according to Fire Chief Lee Williams.

Jordan's young queen dies in copter crash

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Jordan's young Queen Alia was buried in the royal cemetery near Amman today less than 24 hours after her death in a helicopter crash.

King Hussein, wearing a red-and-white Bedouin headdress, stood by grief-stricken but dry-eyed as the queen's flag-draped coffin was lowered into its grave.

A crowd of about 3,000 mourners, mostly Jordanian dignitaries, stood silently during the 90-minute service in a nearby mosque and later at the cemetery.

The capital itself was enveloped in mourning as schools, banks and public offices closed. Jordanian flags fluttered everywhere at half staff. People in the streets stopped each other to express their feelings over the death of the queen.

The general air of sadness was heightened by constant chanting of verses from the Koran over the Jordanian state radio.

Queen Alia, a 29-year-old diplomat's daughter and champion of women's rights, had flown to At Tafilah in the mountains 200 miles south of Amman to inspect a hospital. Her helicopter ran into a rainstorm and crashed, killing the queen, Health Minister Mohammed El Bashir, an air force doctor and the pilot. There were no survivors.

The burial was held on short notice at the new royal cemetery adjacent to the Hashmiya Palace, 15 miles west of Amman.

MSAC President Pearce resigns

Eldon E. Pearce, president of Mt. San Antonio College for the past 4½ years, submitted his resignation to the board of trustees Wednesday night.

The resignation was unexpected and will take effect next Sept. 8. It follows the retirement of Thomas O'Connor, vice president in charge of academic affairs, who turned in his resignation last month.

Pearce, whose contract with the college has two more years to go, said he was leaving because he wanted to devote his time and energy to "other interests," including community work, while he and his wife, Bee, were in good health.

"This has been the toughest decision I have had to make in a long time," he told the board. "But I feel it is best for me and for the college."

The trustees immediately sent out word that they were looking for candidates to succeed the departing president.

Pearce, 58, has been in education for the past 29 years, serving the last 18 with the college. He began as a teacher with the Burbank School District in 1948, and moved to MSAC 11 years later to become assistant director of business. He was named vice president of business services in 1966, and succeeded Mrs. Marie Mills as president of the college in 1972.

He is a former president of the California Association of School Business Officials.

In announcing his retirement, Pearce told the board he hoped that "in some small way I have helped MSAC attain the status of greatness among community colleges."

The impact his departure will make on the college was voiced by Carter Dorin, president of the faculty senate, who called Pearce a "master of interpersonal relationships, who listened and understood."

He said the loss of two leaders at the same time will put a great strain on the college system.

Freeze not considered in S.B. Co.

San Bernardino County Assessor Robert J. Herbin said today actions announced by Los Angeles County Assessor Philip E. Watson have "never been considered, or even discussed" in San Bernardino County.

Watson Wednesday declared a two-year halt on reappraising residential property.

"In my opinion," said Herbin, "Watson is misinterpreting the law. The law is specific. It says that by March 1, 1978, each assessor must supply a plan to reassess his county on a schedule, not to exceed each five-year period."

Herbin said the plan may be by geographic area or by property type, but that no area could be assessed a second time before the entire county is covered.

"There are reasonable exceptions," he explained, "in cases of rapid changes of economic value. That can do it."

Herbin said he feels he will be able to reassess San Bernardino County by 1979 annually. "That's the plan we're looking at," he added.

20 die, 42 hurt in bus accident

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An overloaded passenger bus fell about 300 feet down an embankment several miles outside Taxco Wednesday night, killing 20 persons and injuring 42, police reported.

"The survivers are all in very critical condition," a police spokesman said. "Most are still unconscious and none are in any shape to talk."

He said no one escaped unhurt.

Authorities said the accident occurred on a bad curve on the winding road to the village in the Sierra Madre mountains

Salinger's eldest son leaps to death from Golden Gate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Marc Salinger, eldest son of former White House press secretary Pierre Salinger, has become the 591st person known to commit suicide by leaping from the Golden Gate Bridge.

Authorities said a witness saw the stocky, 28-year-old Salinger walking alone on the sidewalk near the north tower at 7:35 a.m. Wednesday. Then he climbed over the low railing, walked about 50 feet along a catwalk, and jumped to his death, investigators said.

His body was recovered by the Coast Guard. No note was found.

Valley man arrested on 28 charges involving bad checks, grand theft

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

The 31-year-old former owner of Mission Mobile Home Center, Inc., 4530 Holt Blvd., Montclair, has been charged with 28 counts of nonsufficient funds checks and two counts of grand theft involving more than $500,000 from the West End Escrow Corp., the victim, according to San Bernardino County District Atty. James Cramer.

The criminal complaint was filed by Cramer Wednesday in the San Bernardino County Municipal Court following a 16-week investigation.

According to Cramer, the suspect is Edward Scott Ritchey of 9999 Foothill Blvd., Cucamonga.

Cramer said Ritchey was the owner-operator of the Mission Mobile Home Center, Inc.

Cramer added that the business was purchased by Ritchey on July 1, 1976.

Cramer said that Ritchey also is accused in a complaint of the theft of $26,396 from Irving Browne of Marina del Rey. Cramer said Browne purchased a mobile home from Ritchey, but Ritchey did not pay the manufacturer for the coach.

Cramer said that Browne originally had paid cash for the mobile home.

This case was brought to the attention of the district attorney's office by Department of Motor Vehicle investigators who had received complaints regarding the sales of mobile homes by the Mission Mobile Home Center.

Bail for Ritchey was set at $100,000. He was booked in the San Bernardino County jail.

Gov. Brown warns residents of SoCal

Must begin to save for the arid North

By The Associated Press

Water supplies continued to dwindle in dusty-dry Northern and Central California as state and local officials began devising emergency plans to allocate scarce water reserves where most needed.

In Sacramento, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. huddled Wednesday with about 75 legislators, state officials and representatives of water districts and agricultural groups to discuss water-saving strategies. He voiced doubt about statewide rationing, but refused to rule it out.

Brown had stiff warnings for residents in Southern California, saying despite relative water-wealth there, they must begin to save for the arid North, locked in the grip of a two-year drought.

"When people are facing bankruptcy in water-short Northern California, they view with dismay the filling of swimming pools in Southern California and the construction of new recreational lakes," he said.

Announcement was expected today of final plans to divert 10 million gallons of water per day meant for Southern California to the hard-hit Marin Municipal Water District.

Under the plan, at an estimated $500,000 price tag, water would be diverted within 60 days from the California Water Project, pumped through East Bay Municipal Water District pipelines to Pt. Richmond, and then taken by pipeline or barge to parched Marin.

Meanwhile, Sonoma County water officials predicted Wednesday the Russian River would be dry by July 1.

Gordon Miller, chief of the Sonoma County Water Agency, said a barren Russian River would leave the seven communities it serves to their own resources. Miller said mandatory rationing might stretch stored reserves until August, but residents in Santa Rosa, Cotati, Petaluma, Rohnert Park, Sonoma and the Forestville and Valley of the Moon county water districts might have to tap their well capacity.

A state Department of Food and Agriculture official said Wednesday that the drought could cost California farmers $2.5 billion to $3.5 billion. The assessment by Gordon Snow followed on the heels of 50 per cent to 75 per cent cutbacks in irrigation water by state and federal water authorities.

Car insurance differences are defended

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State insurance officials have joined insurance companies in defending the system of different rates for different areas.

It happened Wednesday at a hearing of the Committee on Insurance and Financial Institutions of the state Senate, where Los Angeles County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn and a Los Angeles delegation argued for a single statewide rate.

"If you eliminated territorial rates, it would cause problems," said Mark Gerlach, a state insurance rate analyst.

"Many companies would not provide insurance in high-risk areas."

Gerlach and his boss, state Insurance Commissioner Wesley Kinder, defended rates and their regulation.

"Insurance rates are increasing because losses are increasing," Gerlach said. He said payments have increased faster than rates for the last several years because of inflation in the cost of health care and cars.

He said rates can best be controlled by such measures as tougher penalties for drunken driving, tougher driver's license tests and more safety devices on cars.

Hahn and his delegation called for a state investigation of the auto insurance industry in light of increasing rates, wide disparities between geographic zones, and the large number of uninsured motorists.

The more than 400 companies now insuring drivers in California charge different rates depending on where the driver lives. Most issue different rates for men and women and single and married persons, and some have different rates for different occupations.

Hahn said in one case, several companies increased their rates last month from $629 to $794 for a zone that covers Hollywood, Beverly Hills and Watts.

But he said in an adjacent zone from Pasadena to Pomona, the same companies' rate is $434, and in San Diego they charge $299.

He said when 2,500 East Los Angeles residents were annexed into Monterey Park, their insurance premiums dropped 25 per cent, even though their cars and driving habits were unchanged.

But Gerlach said the companies legitimately base their rates on losses incurred in each area. He said a single statewide rate would force low-risk drivers to subsidize high-risk drivers.

Michael McCabe, attorney for Allstate Insurance Co., said that because claims in urban areas, particularly central Los Angeles, are far more frequent and costly than elsewhere, a uniform statewide rate would repuire increases for 69 per cent of Allstate's nearly one million policy-holders in California.

Railway's historic career ends

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The historic career of the San Diego & Arizona Eastern Railway, one of the world's most treacherous and disaster-ridden railroads, is coming to an end, a victim of last year's Tropical Storm Kathleen.

The twisting corkscrew rail line which dipped south of San Diego and then east toward Arizona — but actually never got into Arizona — took years of adversity to build. Through its 59 years it has been ravaged by floods and rockslides between the Imperial Valley and the Pacific Ocean.

Its parent company, Southern Pacific Transportation Co., said in a statement Wednesday that it was financially impractical to rebuild the line from El Centro to San Diego because it would cost $1.27 million to repair damage from Tropical Storm Kathleen last Sept. 10.

The storm tore out three railroad trestles, damaged five others and washouts and slides destroyed sections of track in more than 50 other locations, the railroad said.

Only an 18-mile stretch of the SD&AE would remain in operation between El Centro and Plaster City to the west.

Southern Pacific said it would submit a request to the Interstate Commerce Commission to abandon the rest of the 170-mile route between El Centro and San Diego, including a part that runs through Mexico.

The line, which once had hourly passenger and freight service between San Diego and El Centro, has carried only freight for the last 21 years.

Completed in 1918, it never went into Arizona, but connects with Southern Pacific routes to the east from El Centro.

SP wants to end its operation on 70 miles of line from Plaster City west through the Jacumba and Laguna Mountains as zell as 45 miles of track that dip through Baja California between Tecate and Tijuana that is part of the Mexican national railway system.

Also, the line seeks to end operation of about 37 miles of track in the San Diego area — branch lines to El Cajon and National City — as well as a connection to the Mexican tracks.

Denman K. McNear, SP president, said in a statement that "the handwriting was probably on the wall for the SD&AE long before storm Kathleen."

He said the line, which crosses a rugged desert area before entering its steep, twisting route through Carriso Gorge, "has always been subject to storm damage and expensive to maintain, and the amount of traffic it carried was small."

He said its last full year of operation, 1975, the line lost $1.1 million on the sections SP wants to abandon.

San Diego will continue to have transcontinental rail service through Los Angeles with no freight-rate disadvantages, McNear said.

He said most commercial traffic between the Imperial Valley and San Diego now moves by truck over Interstate 8, which is 39 miles shorter and faster than the slow mountainous train route.

"The SD&AE is just a line that has outlived its usefulness," McNear said. "It performed a useful service at one time, but its job is done."

Academy awards

Nominees to be chosen today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Network," "All the President's Men" and "Rocky" were expected to be the major winners today in the 49th Motion Picture Academy award nominations.

The ceremonies were to be routine, with 200 press and press agents gathering at the Academy's headquarters in Beverly Hills. Traditionally the nominations are issued at precisely 9:30 a.m. The press rush to telephone their office. Press agents relay the good or bad news to their clients.

Marty Feldman and Jacqueline Bisset were to read the nominations for the benefit of the television cameras.

The 49th nominations may well produce some oddities.

If Peter Finch is nominated for best actor for "Network," as seems certain, he will be the third actor so honored posthumously. It happened to Spencer Tracy for "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner" in 1968, and James Dean for "East of Eden" in 1956 and "Giant" in 1957.

Sylvester Stallone is likely to be nominated as both star and writer of "Rocky." He'll be in distinguished company; only Charles Chaplin and Orson Wells have been so nominated before.

Barbra Streisand could score a first by being nominated as best actress and writer of the best song for "A Star Is Born." She was also executive producer of the film.

Walnut council takes no action on Expo 81

By PHYLLIS CANNON
Asst. City Editor

Upon the recommendation of City Manager Vern Lawson, Walnut City Council Wednesday night took no action on a request it "participate" in Expo 81, a proposed 1981 world's fair at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Lawson told councilmen that Pomona had taken no position on the proposed fair, and that "several cities" had opposed it. "I recommend you receive and file the request and the report," he said.

Council's vote was unanimous.

In a lengthy report, with a cover letter signed by Jack Kelly, chairman of regional commissioners, Walnut had been invited to appoint a representative to the commission so the impact of Expo 81 could be explained to cities.

Expo 81 President Richard M. Pittenger, in the report, had outlined the structure of the commissioner system as "five-tiered": state, regional, county, city and federal.

Duties of the commissioners, Pittenger explained, were to chair meetings, provide hospitality to VIPs, dispense public information, provide transportation and lodging for visiting groups, handle publicity, and arrange local interest tours in conjunction with a transportation committee.

The council received and filed the report without comment.

Upon the counsel of City Atty. Samuel Siegel, the council instructed Councilman Joe Hahn to attend a Feb. 23 meeting to discuss the feasibility of Walnut joining a 24-city pooled insurance risk plan.

"This approach is long overdue," said Siegel. "The insurance will be cheaper now (than existing policies) and the pool will supply a future source."

Lawson told council premiums with the city's current carrier were being increased 33 per cent this year.

Los Angeles County Deputy Sheriff's Capt. Don Foxen, who has headed the Industry Sheriff's office three years and now is being reassigned, was presented a plaque by council, and his successor, Capt. Lawrence Dykhouse, was introduced.

Council agreed to allow the operation of a retail store to sell horse supplies at 320 S. Lemon Ave. on the condition that no there be no outside storage or display of goods, that the Development Review Board approve the sign to be displayed, and that the permit to operate the store expire in 10 years.

California welldiggers keep busy

California's well drillers have overtime schedules ahead as farmers contract for deeper wells, or new ones.

"Water levels went down about 10 feet last year" — the third driest of the century in California — and "estimates are the water table will go down another 15 feet this year," Bob Holt of the Tomato Growers Association in Stockton said Wednesday. "Some farmers will have to wait a year to get well work."

As state and federal water suppliers announced cuts of 50 to 75 per cent to irrigators, state agriculture officials projected a $2.5-billion to $3.5-billion loss in agriculture this year.

The cutbacks equate to one million fewer cultivated acres this year out of a total of more than 10 million.

California produces 40 to 45 per cent of the nation's fruit and vegetables.

Fred Heringer, president of the California Farm Bureau Federation, said water shortages may bring power shortages that will cut pumping from wells.

"It could come down to running air conditioners or pumps this summer," said Jack King, farm bureau economist.

King said farmers last year spent an extra $25 million to pump water because of the drought.

Livestock and dairy farmers have been hardest hit.

One state legislator who is a dairy farmer wants the state National Guard to use its trucks to haul water and feed for livestock.

King said vineyards could be hurt because new, berry-producing growth could be prevented.

"In almonds, if there's not enough water, it will hurt the sizing of the nuts. Prunes could be smaller, too."

A one-pound can of processed tomatoes could rise 10 per cent or more in cost. "That's not too high," said Holt "It's certainly safe to say it'll go up a nickel a can."

Vaccine program to be low key

By The Associated Press

Flu vaccine is again available to public immunization programs, but state officials across the country foresee only a low-key effort to reach those most vulnerable — the elderly and chronically ill.

An Associated Press survey indicates that in most states, efforts to immunize against swine flu and the A-Victoria strain that has broken out at a Florida nursing home will be kept to the so-called "high risk" cases — those over 50 or 60 or with chronic diseases.

Chino hit-run suspect surrenders to police

An Ontario man accused of fleeing the scene of a traffic accident Tuesday in Chino where a five-ton truck collided with a pickup truck has surrendered himself to Chino police.

Guadalupe De La Torre, 1020 Euclid Ave., was booked into the West End sheriff's jail on suspicion of hit and run driving. He told investigators that just prior to the collision at Yorba Avenue and Riverside Drive, he was looking down at a delivery sheet. When he looked up, he saw the pickup in front of him.

De La Torre was reported driving the large truck west on Riverside Drive and failed to stop for a traffic signal when his vehicle collided broadside with the pickup traveling south on Yorba, operated by Richard Krzysiak of Chino, said officers.

The impact knocked the pickup into two other occupied vehicles stopped at the light, they added.

Krzysiak was admitted to San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland where his condition was listed as good. De La Torre and the other two drivers escaped injuries.

There are currently 538 electors in the American Electoral College which chooses the President and Vice President of the United States. Each state is entitled to the same number of electors as the total number of senators and representatives it sends to Congress.

Valley crime

Assaults officer, flees

A Cal Poly student from Upland was accused of attacking a deputy sheriff and escaping briefly from the Industry sheriff's station Wednesday afternoon after being picked up earlier by campus police on a $65.50 traffic warrant.

The student, Michael Ray West, 22, of 535 N. Euclid Ave., was captured on the station parking lot by returning detectives and was rebooked on felony charges of attempted escape and assault on a police officer, deputies said today. West was taken later to the main county jail in Los Angeles for security reasons, they added.

Deputies gave this account of the incident:

At 2:30 p.m. West was stopped on the campus by police who learned as the result of a routine radio check that there was a traffic warrant calling for his arrest. The warrant, from San Dimas, called for bail of $65.50.

West was booked at the Industry station where, at 4 p.m., Jailer Ollie Baker, 51, attempted to move him from the booking cell to another cell. As he did so, West shoved Baker into a cell door and fled down a corridor and outside the building.

Meanwhile, detectives returning to the station seized West on the parking lot and returned him to the building.

Baker was taken to West Covina's Queen of the Valley Hospital where six stitches were used to close the wound and he was released. He is an 18-year veteran of the department.

Church parking lot holdup

A Pomona man was threatened with a pistol, a switchblade knife and was knocked down by three young men who robbed him Wednesday evening.

The attack took place on the parking lot of the First Christian Church at 1751 N. Park Ave., Pomona, where the victim was confronted by the three.

The victim said he was walking when they approached him and one said, "We want your wallet." When he refused, one of the trio pulled a revolver from his waistband and shoved the victim into bushes on the west side of the church. Then a switchblade was put to his throat and one of the robbers took his wallet containing $5.

As they began to walk away, the victim was warned not to follow them. When he did, however, one, a six-footer weighing 250 pounds, hit him in the face and knocked him down. The three then ran westbound.

The robber who hit the victim was described as black and about 18 years old. He wore a red nylon jacket, white trousers and a brown knit cap.

The one with the pistol was described also as black, about 18, 5 feet 8 weighing 180 pounds. He wore a brown jacket and knit cap.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's special envoys are preparing to leave for Panama amid reports that the Carter administration is ready to ease U.S. terms for a new Canal Treaty.

Major elements of Carter's projected compromise remain secret, but U.S. officials say they expect the President, represented in the talks by Washington lawyer Sol M. Linowitz, to move nearer Panamanian demands on several key issues.

As U.S. negotiators prepared to leave Sunday for Panama, Panamanian Foreign Minister Aquilino Boyd resigned Wednesday in a dispute with strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos Herrera over the canal talks.

Torrijos named as Boyd's replacement, Nicolas Gonzalez Revilla, Panama's current ambassador to the United States.

U.S. sources say the canal talks issues on which U.S. movement is expected relate to the duration of the new treaty, circumstances in which the United States can exercise primary rights to defend the canal, size of the 553-square mile Canal Zone, arrangements that would give Panama a bigger share of Canal tolls and other revenue and ways to expand the waterway so it can handle big new ships.

Carter this week named Linowitz co-negotiator along with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, who had for years been in sole charge of the slow-moving negotiations.

With Linowitz' appointment, Carter signaled Panama that he intends a personal role in the talks. As if to underline the resolve to hustle the negotiations toward a settlement, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, before taking office, told Costa Rican Foreign Minister Gonzalo Facio a new pace could be achieved by April or May.

Meanwhile Torrijos, authoritarian head of the Panamanian government, has sent his own signals back to the White House, defining his minimum demands in advance of the talks, which begin Feb. 20.

The Panamanian embassy said Torrijos' demands are for total and final U.S. withdrawal by Dec. 31, 1999; that thereafter the security and neutrality of the waterway should be vested in the United Nations to guarantee it will remain free and open to all countries.

The clear implication of the Panamanian leader's message was that Carter can't expect to achieve what former president Gerald R. Ford's administration vainly sought: a wholesale revision of the 1903 treaty for a period of 20 years, followed by a further 20-year pact in which U.S. forces could be stationed along the canal. Under this plan, the United States would retain indefinitely and exclusively the primary right to safeguard the waterway against attack, either by outsiders or from within, meaning from Panamanians themselves.

U.S. officials suggest the administration is pondering concessions that would bring the time period for sole U.S. operational control, primary defense rights and occupation of the waterway more or less into line with the Torrijos formula. That means the new treaty will run until about the end of the century, but a plan for shared control beyond the year 2000 seems likely to be pushed.

The Canal Zone is likely to shrink considerably below the 270-square-mile area previously proposed by U.S. negotiators, but it is unlikely to be as small as the 55-square miles Panama proposed.

The U.S. garrison of 10,000 military personnel and their dependents now stationed in Panama almost certainly will be cut under probable U.S. concessions. As more Panamanians are trained to share in canal operations, U.S. civilian workers are to be pulled out. This will enable Panama to take jurisdiction over the zone, where U.S. laws now apply.

Pirates board U.S. ship; scared off

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Pirates brandishing guns and knives boarded an American freighter off Colombia last month, but when crewmen blew the whistle they began quaking in their boots and took off with only a watch and a cigarette lighter for booty.

According to a formal report written by third mate Coy B. Deaton, the S.S. Mason Lykes reached the harbor of Buenaventura, Colombia, at midnight on Jan. 27.

Soon afterward, 15 men armed with guns and knives came alongside in a pair of 20-foot boats powered by outboard engines and boarded the anchored ship.

The only gun aboard was a pistol locked in a safe in the captain's cabin and the only defense the crew on duty could muster was to blow repeated blasts on the whistle.

That gradually roused the rest of the crewmen and the ship's two passengers, who gathered on the main deck, where Deaton was looking into the muzzle of a pistol.

Another mate raised the Buenaventura harbor master by radio, but he said he couldn't help.

Meanwhile, "the sound of the whistle made them more and more nervous," Deaton wrote of the would-be buccaneers, and the ever-growing crew unnerved them.

Deaton said he is "sure they would have used the gun if I or anyone had attempted to force them off physically. They appeared nervous and apprehensive and I kept telling them that we had called the police."

Capt. H.G. Guice said it was the first time a Lykes Bros. ship had actually been boarded in force by armed bandits in the area, "although our ships are always on the alert for it."

Angola wants ties with U.S.

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — President Agostinho Neto of Angola, in his first meeting with an American official since his Marxist faction took power in 1975, has told Ambassador Andrew Young he wants to establish relations with the United States.

Young told reporters that Neto said "he and the Russians are friends although there were many things they disagreed on, and he didn't see why we couldn't be friends although there were many things we disagreed on."

The Ford administration backed two other Angolan nationalist movements in the civil war which Neto's Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA) won and then refused to recognize the MPLA government because Prime Minister Fidel Castro did not withdraw the 10,000 Cuban troops that fought for the MPLA.

Young, first black American ambassador to the United Nations, met with Neto Tuesday night in Kaduna, the capital of Northern Nigeria. They were attending a Moslem pageant of loyalty and arms known as the durbar, and their meeting was arranged by the Nigerian chief of state, Lt. Gen. Olusegan Obasanjo.

The meeting with Neto was Young's fourth with one of the so-called "front-line" African presidents who are the chief supporters of black nationalists fighting to take over Rhodesia from the ruling white minority.

The Angolan "was the first one I've disagreed with," Young told reporters on the flight from Kaduna to Lagos Wednesday. "He told me he had trust in the long armed struggle and the people, and they were eventually going to win."

The ambassador said he replied that he thought a united black leadership and moral support from Britain and the United States were more effective than arms.

Rifleman frees 7 hostages, gives up

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — A young man armed with two rifles holed up in a suburban Washington, D.C., bank for seven hours, first taking and then releasing unharmed seven hostages before surrendering to police early today.

The man, identified as Stephan Gregory, 27, of Silver Spring, Md., walked into the bank with two rifles after an argument with his girlfriend, police said. He drank several cans of beer and munched on a steak sandwich while negotiating with police by phone and occasionally spraying rifle shots through the door of the bank and into its ceiling.

Sgt. Douglas McFee of the Montgomery County, Md., police said after the siege ended that Gregory made no threats and few demands. He said the gunman placed a rifle at the ear of one of his hostages once during the evening and demanded to talk with a policeman.

There were no injuries reported although police estimated Gregory fired more than 200 rounds of ammunition from his two rifles.

He kept seven bank employes, including three women, as hostages, but released them one-by-one as the evening wore on. He traded one of the hostages for a police bullhorn.

JOSEPH WAMBAUGH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After four years of work in what he calls the Hollywood jungle, author Joseph Wambaugh, creative consultant for television's "Police Story," says he's quitting show business.

"Henceforth, I will be just plain Joseph Wambaugh, author," the former police sergeant said Wednesday. "I might add, I'm sleeping better and not constantly looking over my shoulder to guard against some of the nefarious plots and deceits that are hatched in the name of show business."

Wambaugh said he has delivered the movie script of his best-selling book, "The Choirboys," and has resigned his consulting post with "Police Story."

Wambaugh is known to have been disappointed at the movie treatment of his books. He had threatened earlier to withdraw from television when he felt the series "Police Story" and "The Blue Knight" deviated from realism.

A spokesman said Wambaugh has sold his San Marino home and moved to Newport Beach.

Wambaugh, a former Los Angeles police sergeant, is the author of "The New Centurions," "The Blue Knight," "The Onion Field" and "The Choirboys." He is the creator of "Police Story."

"I have now severed all my professional ties with the movie and TV industries," he said in a statement.

Convicted IRA terrorists 'No. 1'

LONDON (AP) — "We're the best there's been," Irish Republican Army guerrilla Eddie Butler boasted to Scotland Yard detectives who captured him and three other IRA men after a two-year campaign of terror in English cities.

The Yard men grudgingly agree.

"They were considered the most important terrorists in Britain until they were caught," a senior officer commented. "They were all Public Enemy No. 1.

"They were a tight-knit unit, well disciplined, closely integrated and without misfits. They were also the most violent and ruthless cell active in England."

Butler and the other three men were convicted at London's Old Bailey court Wednesday on 25 counts of murder and bombing. Sentencing was set for today.

The squad was part of a crack IRA team trained in the Irish Republic in 1973 to create havoc and panic in England's major cities, Scotland Yard said. The aim was to pressure the British into ending their rule of Northern Ireland, where the Roman Catholic IRA has been fighting for seven and a half years to force the British out of the Protestant-dominated province and unite it with the neighboring Republic.

The leader of the squad was Joseph O'Connell, a sallowfaced 25-year-old Irishman from County Clare on the Republic's west coast. The others were Butler and 24-year-old Harry Duggan, both Irishmen, and Glasgow-born Hugh Doherty.

Advertising agency may take over

$2 bill just can't get going

WASHINGTON (AP) — Having failed on its own, the government now is considering paying an advertising agency $300,000 to convince Americans they need the $2 bill.

Officials admit disappointment in the public reception given the $2 bill since it was brought back with considerable fanfare about 10 months ago.

In fact, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing has stopped printing the bills, at least temporarily. Of the approximately 415 million that were printed, about 222 million actually went into circulation.

But that number is not as impressive as it might seem. Millions of the $2 bills apparently were hoarded away as souvenirs soon after they were issued last April 13, and have been unused since.

James A. Conlon, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, said he is encouraged that four million of the $2 bills showed up in circulation in December, the last month for which a count is available.

Conlon said in an interview that he thinks consumers want the $2 bill but just aren't getting a chance to use it because retail merchants aren't distributing it.

"As we see it, citizens are waiting to use the bills, but they are being denied the opportunity to use it," he said. "I'm disappointed ... in the apparent reluctance of cashiers to use the bills."

Conlon said there is no danger yet that the new $2 bills will go the way of the old $2 bills, which were phased out of circulation in 1966 because people weren't using them. "We're firm in our intention," he said.

He said the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Federal Reserve Board are proposing a "more positive" public relations campaign than has been tried before to win acceptance for the $2 bill.

If Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal approves, Conlon said, the agencies will seek bids from advertising agencies and others to undertake the campaign, which would cost about $300,000.

When the reissue of the $2 bill first was announced, the plan was to print so many bills that the public would have to use them. But the stumbling block to this plan has been retailers, who have not distributed them to their customers, Conlon said.

"The apparent reluctance by retailers to utilize the notes in making change .... that's the key focal point," he said.

The purpose in reissuing the $2 bill was to replace some of the $1 bills in circulation and save the government up to $7 million a year in printing costs.

McBride looms as victor for steel union post

PITTSBURGH (AP) — In a show of support for the moderate policies of retiring president I.W. Abel, United Steelworkers Union members have apparently picked Lloyd McBride as his successor over rebel Edward Sadlowski.

Unofficial returns gathered by The Associated Press gave the 60-year-old USW director from St. Louis a 299,877 to 198,472 margin with about 4,000 of the union's 5,000 locals reporting.

Abel, who retires in June from the $75,000-a-year post atop the 1.4 million-member union, had endorsed McBride as his successor.

"We could claim victory and be safe," McBride said from his home in St. Louis. "We've agreed to wait."

Carter takes time with bureaucrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is visiting Cabinet departments one by one, encouraging bureaucrats in hallways, offices, cafeterias and auditoriums to be imaginative, unafraid of change and more responsive to the people.

Carter set aside time today to walk to the Treasury, next door to the White House, to meet in the Cash Room with employes. Lined with tellers' cages until it was closed last summer, the Cash Room was the Federal Reserve System's last remaining bank that cashed checks.

Now an empty room with marble walls, the Cash Room once turned checks into greenbacks and silver for government workers and others. It became known as a place where the poor with no bank accounts of their own could cash their welfare checks.

Like other banks of its kind across the country, it was shut down as uneconomical.

The President arranged to ride from the Treasury to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, where hundreds of workers were invited to the cafeteria to hear him. He also planned to visit several offices in the building.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Carter will tour every Cabinet department "to see the people and to express ... his direct concerns." Powell said there is no significance to the order of the President's visits.

Carter went to the Labor Department on Wednesday. "Be aggressive, dynamic and imaginative," he told its employes. "I don't want any of you to be afraid of change.... I want an aggressive, constant search for a better way to deliver services."

With Cabinet secretary Jack Watson in tow, the President ventured first into the crannies of the department, entering with Secret Service agents through the basement, taking an elevator to the second floor and greeting workers in the hallways.

He toured offices in the Policy Evaluation and Research Division, then stepped into the main hallway. Bureaucrats cheered, whistled and shouted. One man lifted a woman so she could see. Men and women pulled and shoved to grab Carter's hand or touch his sleeve.

Several women touched the hands of others who touched the President. "Jimmy, Jimmy...," they shouted. "Mr. President, Mr. President." His bodyguards cleared a path to the department's marble lobby, where Carter stepped onto a small stage.

"I'm glad to be here with you," he told about 1,000 workers, some of whom survey the unemployed and administer programs to help them. "I was unemployed until three weeks ago," Carter said. "But now I've got a good job." The group cheered and applauded.

Parent groups organize

Four agencies in the West End of San Bernardino County have recently completed a training program to organize and conduct parent groups in their areas.

The Chino Council of Social Services (628-5111), the Firehouse Free Clinic (624-8056) in Montclair, and Aztlan Community Services (986-1121) and Reach Out West End (984-4016) in Ontario will be organizing effective family communications programs — parent groups — soon and may be contacted by any parent.

The course is free, said Gary Ross, clinical social worker and consultant with the San Bernardino County Department of Mental Health's consultation, education and information program.

Ross and Bill Newell, a clinician with the department's Outreach Program, recently completed the training program for members of nine agencies planning to conduct parent groups in their areas.

Each group, utilizing group instruction and discussion by participants will meet two or three hours a week for nine weeks.

Ross emphasized that it's just as important for fathers to attend as it is for mothers.

Interested parents should contact the agency nearest to them or call 383-3334 or 383-1408.

Men into beasts

Circe, according to Greek mythology, had the power to change men into beasts. When the Greek hero Odysseus resisted her spell, she fell in love with him.

By S.B. County supervisors

Passage of 14 bills sought

San Bernardino County supervisors are seeking passage this year of 14 bills in the California Legislature. One is a controversial attempt to combat illegal subdividing.

These proposals are being submitted to area legislators serving in the state Senate and Assembly.

The measure involving subdividing would require county approval before any land could be divided by way of a long-term sales contract.

Currently, there is no review of violations. And violations on contract sales are often not known for years until the deed is transferred, said county officials. At that time, it is almost impossible to rectify problems, they added.

Other legislation sought by supervisors would:

—Require the state to establish "clear, specific water purity standards" that would have to be violated before a community could be forced to install a sewer system to avert pollution of surface or underground waters.

—Allow the county to use $200,000 from traffic fine revenues to cover operating costs of its new automated fine billing system in the municipal courts.

—Allow court actions to recover overpayments made to welfare and food stamp recipients so some $600,000 could be recovered by the county.

—Increase state payments for snow removal so the county's share would rise from $230,000 to about $530,000 per year.

—The state provide an estimated $385,000 a year to the county for hospital care of illegal aliens by making aliens eligible for Medi-Cal assistance.

—Allow the county to bill Medi-Cal, private insurance carriers or individuals an estimated $260,000 a year for medical treatment of prisoners whose care is now entirely the county's responsibility.

—Increase Medi-Cal reimbursements to the county by $75,000 a year by allowing certification of eligibility for comatose and amnesia victims before they are identified or able to attest to their qualifications.

—Allow the county to levy $170,000 in fees per year for inspection of commercial scales gauges and other weighing and measuring devices.

—Increase filing fees for small claims actions, from $2 to $8 to cover increased processing costs.

—Limit Workmen Compensation applicants to charging the county for only one medical report on the question of permanent disability if he is treated by his own doctor. Cost savings to the county may be $22,500 a year, officials said.

—Provide counties the option of buying rather than leasing equipment for private mental health contract agencies which rely mostly on state funding. About $15,000 in rental equipment payments are being made annually on equipment that could have been purchased for $22,000, said officials.

Commission chairman is elected

The Rev. Herschell Rice has been elected the new chairman of the Pomona Parks and Recreation Commission.

A member of the commission since December 1974, Rice succeeds Dr. Ivan Smith as chairman. Dr. Smith had held the post for six years and his term on the commission will expire in June.

Elected vice chairman of the commission was William Jay.

Candidate

Political arena...

C.J. MENDOZA, a candidate for the Pomona school board, has opened a campaign headquarters at 300 S. Garey Ave., Pomona.

Mendoza has extended an invitation to all school district residents to visit the headquarters.

He is being supported by a committee which includes Roy O Day, Roy G. Decker, Martha Vejar, June Hyman, James Baker, Mrs. Roy O. Day, Mrs. Esther Landin, Currier H. Thatcher, J. Romo, G. Grenville Whyte, Mary Harper, Tom Lopez, George Hart, Richard Hyman, Joe Duncan and David Ochoa.

Mendoza said a Diamond Bar headquarters is forthcoming. For information, those interested may call 622-6160.

The Associated Pomona Teachers (APT) has endorsed ANN MESLOVICH and C.J. (CANDE) MENDOZA for Pomona school board in the upcoming March 8 election.

Mendoza is a former teacher, counselor and principal in the Pomona Unified School District. He is now an assistant superintendent with the Los Nietos Elementary School District in Whittier.

Meslovich is a Pomona homemaker with children in Pomona schools. She actively supported the teachers in their strike and negotiations with the school district last fall.

The APT issued invitations for all eight candidates in the race to appear for interviews with its committee on endorsements. Only two endorsements were finally approved despite the fact that three seats are open on the board.

ASSEMBLYMAN DAVE STIRLING, R-64th Dist., Hacienda Heights, will meet with Walnut area residents at the Walnut City Hall from 1 to 4 p.m. on March 4. Appointments may be made by calling 622-2673.

U.S. SEN. ALAN CRANSTON said final agreement has been reached to create a statewide screening commission to help select federal judges and U.S. attorneys in California.

Atty. Allyn Kreps will serve as chairman of the non-salaried, nine-member commission. He will serve a four-year term.

California has 41 district judges and four U.S. attorneys. There are 17 seats on the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals which covers nine western states and Guam.

STATE TRANSPORTATION DIRECTOR ADRIANA GIANTURCO has recommended and Secretary of Business and Transportation Alan Rothenberg has approved, 33 applications for public transit improvements costing nearly $2 million. The projects will be financed from sales tax.

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., is co-sponsoring legislation to deny congressmen automatic pay raises this month and later this year.

Lloyd said more than 70 representatives in the 94th Congress joined to block the automatic cost-of-living raise. Funds for salary increases also were rejected last fall. Another vote must be taken before Wednesday to deny the pay increase which was recommended in ex-President Ford's budget.

"Very few citizens have the luxury of an automatic pay hike at taxpayers expense. Congress should not be the exception," said Lloyd.

SEN. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, R-33rd Dist., has introduced legislation to allow doctors to treat cancer patients with Laetril, ending the state's prohibition on the use of the controversial substance.

"The motivation for my legislation does not lie in the validity of Laetril as a cancer therapy, but rather in my belief that a physician has the right to treat his patients to the best of his ability and should have any and all safe substances at his disposal," said Campbell.

JOHN MOSS, dean of the California Democratic Delegation in the House of Representatives, has announced the unanimous re-election of Rep. Jim Lloyd to serve as secretary-treasurer of the delegation.

Also, LLOYD has joined other California congressmen in urging President Carter to appoint more Hispanic or Spanish surnamed Americans to key administrative positions.

"There are those of Spanish heritage who possess great capability in providing a balance and understanding of a culture which is an integral function of our nation," said Lloyd.

Legislation to "toughen and clarify" the state's new determinate sentencing law has been introduced by ASSEMBLYMAN DAVE STIRLING.

Stirling, an attorney, said the controversial law is "muddled, confusing and needlessly complex and unless amended, the statute's inadequate provisions would threaten community safety and undermine the state's entire criminal justice system."

S.B. County farmers are cautioned

Farmers in San Bernardino County were urged to use caution when buying herbicides from out-of-state salesmen.

"These salesmen contact growers, usually by telephone, and offer to sell them chemicals 'guaranteed' to take care of all their weed problems," said Roger L. Birdsall, county agricultural commissioner.

"But some of the herbicides are restricted for use in California, and a user may unknowingly violate county and state laws. Still other products may contain ingredients such as 2,4-D and soil sterilants that can damage the land," he added.

"Also, many of these products are for use without dilution, which makes them exceedingly expensive to use."

Birdsall said farmers have no recourse if the chemical causes damage or is misrepresented since the herbicide salesman is out of state.

"Always ask to be sent a label and descriptive literature about the chemical, its cost and effects before delivery. And when possible, deal with a known local pest control adviser or dealer.

"They are familiar with local requirements and can supply any type of herbicide you can legally and safely use," he advised.

Persons wanting more information, may phone the county agriculture department at 383-1618.

Bitter growth

Celery is "blanched" during the last stage of its growth. This is done by placing soil about the plant to prevent sunlight from reaching any part of the plant except the leaves. If allowed to grow naturally, the stalks would have a greenish color and a bitter taste.

Paramedics certifying fee may be dropped

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Agencies sponsoring paramedics in San Bernardino County may no longer have to pay a $50 fee to obtain certification.

Noting that the fee may be too high, the county Board of Supervisors this week moved to eliminate the charge and stated costs of certifying paramedics could be handled by the county.

Revenue from the fees this year would be about $5,000 a year, according to Robert Russell, administrator of the county's Health Care Services Agency.

Russell said there had been complaints from nurses and public agencies such as fire departments sponsoring paramedics regarding the $50 fee. The fee provided two-year certification or recertification of mobile intensive care nurses or paramedics.

The county began operating a paramedic program in April, 1975. Since then, certification fees have been paid by sponsoring fire departments and private ambulance companies.

Russell told the supervisors that surrounding counties have elected to administratively support the paramedic program as a public service. "And in view of numerous complaints from paramedics and nurses and their employers, you may wish to reconsider this matter."

Supervisor Dennis Hansberger of Yucaipa was the only board member supporting the present $50 fee. "We charge fees for a variety of things throughout the county. We said we'd charge fees commensurate with this program."

But Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino said, "It isn't fair to charge these people for this — the paramedic program is a great one. We can shoulder the mere $5,000 cost."

Supervisor Joe Kamansky of Upland, saying, "Either the fee is too high or we shouldn't have it at all," moved to instruct the staff to prepare an ordinance to eliminate the fee. Final action on the ordinance will come within two weeks.

Accreditation for CHAFFEY COLLEGE was reaffirmed for another five years at the January meeting of the Accrediting Commission for community and junior Colleges.

S.D. has new city attorney

The San Dimas city attorney has resigned and a new law firm has been appointed to give legal advice to the city.

George Wakefield, a Los Angeles attorney who has served San Dimas for less than a year, announced his resignation recently at a City Council meeting. His resignation was made effective Feb. 1.

The newly appointed law firm of Ebben and Brown will now represent the City. Attorneys for the firm are J. Kenneth Brown, Thomas F. Winfield III and Anthony Canzoneri.

Brown will attend City Council meetings to offer legal advice, while Canzoneri will attend the planning commission meetings.

The Ebben and Brown firm presently represents the cities of Cerritos, Norwalk, Signal Hill and La Canada Flintridge.

San dimas Mayor Marvin Ersher said of the new appointment, "The experience this law firm brings to San Dimas is quite varied and will meet the demands of our growing city."

'Black History' programs slated at S.D. library

African folk tales and anecdotes about an African childhood are offered in connection with the celebration of "Black History Month" by the San Dimas Library.

Kay Simonetti, children's librarian, was born in the country now known as Zaire and lived there for a number of years. She will talk to senior citizens at the Stanley Plummer Community building on Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. and to children at the library Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. about her experiences in Africa.

At another children's session Feb. 23 at 3:30 p.m., she and head librarian, Joan Jolly, will present some African folk tales. Refreshments will be served following the program.

The library is located at 145 N. Walnut Ave. in San Dimas. For more information, call 599-6738.

Nutritionist hired for Pomona program

A nutritionist has been hired to work with participants in Pomona's senior citizen nutritional program, announced Hermaine Utech, director.

Miss Barbara Werner, who holds a masters degree in public health from Cal State San Jose, will hold informal group discussions with participants in the program, answering questions about personal health.

She will also implement a nutritional education program for older adults.

The senior citizen nutritional program, sponsored by the city with federal grant funds, currently operates from two locations, Washington Park Community Center and the Westmont United Methodist Church.

Meals are served Monday through Friday from 12 to 1 p.m., and persons are also invited to participate in a wide variety of social activities including bingo games, movie shows and exercise programs.

Since the beginning of the program, over 6,500 meals have been served to senior citizens.

Former Union Pacific depot will be removed

Union Pacific Railroad will raze its former passenger depot at Pomona, said Supt. Jack E. Sanford of the California division.

The station, opened in 1963, has been vacant for the past six years. The building became surplus after Amtrak took over nationwide intercity rail passenger service in 1971 and decided not to run trains over the UP route in Southern California.

Guy Cross, the road's traffic agent in Pomona, said that freight business will continue to be handled from the mobile agency which serves the Pomona-Ontario area.

Removal of the building will be done by Jones Excavating Co. It will begin within the next 30 days and is expected to take about two weeks.

No chestnut

Longfellow's "spreading chestnut tree" wasn't a chestnut at all, says National Geographic. It was really a false or horse chestnut.

About one half of all students who enter college do not graduate four years later, according to the National Center for Educational Statistics.

Hey Kids, Let's Bring Back Romance

Valentine's Day is here. It's the day for loving, for showing sweet concern and tender feeling. And a day to remember that those efforts are valid twelve months of the year. Harriet Van Horne, one of our country's best known writers, thinks it's time that we remembered that romance — in theory, practice and dream — matters. Over the past decade, romance has taken a bad beating. It's been dismissed as silly, sentimental and an all-out waste of time. But, admit it, in our secret hearts, who does not yearn for romantic love? FAMILY WEEKLY's message this week is that romance is back. Love it.

"What in the World"

Is red really the color of passion? Can you get flowers every day in February? Can you get a break on your taxes by getting married? What Academy Award winner cannot go on until he finds the lost dog he loves? What star is telling her mom 'I love you' with a home in Palm Springs? Could you become an all-around more fit and attractive person by stepping up your consumption of onions and garlic? Is it possible to take a good picture of your kid the perpetual motion machine?

Why is the pear the perfect symbol of romance?

Read all about it in FAMILY WEEKLY February 13

Steve Parks gains $500 scholarship

Steven Parks, son of Pomona Public Library employe Evelyn Parks, has been awarded a $500 scholarship by the Pomona City Employe's Association.

The recipient is a freshman at Mt. San Antonio College.

The scholarship is given annually to a member of the employe's association or the dependent of a member based on academic achievement and a personal interview.

County meets affirmative action request

Los Angeles County apparently is complying far beyond the requirement with the federally mandated affirmative action program to hire minorities.

Approximately 48 per cent of the county employes were nonwhite at the end of 1976, according to Digest, the county's official monthly publication. This compares with a countywide nonwhite population of about 34 per cent.

The ratio was 33.5 per cent in 1968, when the program began.

Of the county's total labor force, 28.7 per cent is black, 12.3 per cent is Latin, and 4.7 per cent Asian-Americans. The rest is other nonwhites.

Although the minorities are far ahead of the population as far as jobs are concerned, they are not doing as well with respect to executive positions.

Only 23 per cent of the minority workers are in the $16,000 to $25,000 bracket.

Security show offers a variety of burglar traps

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There was a bomb detector in attractive office decor, the "Shredmaster Privacy Machine," described as "a beautiful way to destroy ugly rumors," and enough lights, bells, whistles and other alarms to send a burglar screaming into the night.

The scene was the International Security Conference, a trade show for the security industry held here this week. More than 200 companies exhibited the latest in the fast-growing field of protection while consultants conducted seminars on such specialized topics as "Advanced Alarm Troubleshooting," "Hotel-Motel Security" and "Locks, Keys & Safes."

Security is big business — the industry's estimated 1976 sales were more than $7 billion and projections are for the market to reach $30 billion in the early 1980s. Commercial sales currently account for 70 per cent of total volume, with sales to homeowners about 30 per cent, according to Robert Bargert, editor of Security Distributing and Marketing, a key trade publication.

"The residential market has been the tough one for the industry to crack," Bargert said in an interview. "The average guy who owns a home is more afraid to own a burglar alarm than not to own one. If he buys one and he's up in his bedroom and it goes off, what is he going to do? There's an apprehension."

Despite this apparent drawback, companies brought a bewildering array of alarms to the show and their demonstration created a Las Vegas-like atmosphere with sirens, horns and bells ringing continuously throughout the exhibition.

One booth had a "Silent Knight" alarm system while another displayed "Carefree" batteries. There was a wireless microphone slightly larger than a paper clip, various types of bullet-proof glass with the proof showing in the battered but unbroken sample panes and a drawing for a free pair of ballistic helmets able to withstand point-blank pistol fire. For the economy-conscious, there were simulated cameras, billed as "the affordable alternative to shoplifting."

Bargert says today's security-minded homeowner spend about $1,500 to protect a residence. This would include deadbolts on the front and back doors, a perimeter alarm system covering windows and other entrances and an inside "trap" system to detect an intruder that gets through the first line of defense.

"You have to assume that a smart burglar can get through a perimeter system," Bargert said. "So you have an interior system, which can be either infared, ultrasonic or microwave, to catch him."

BURGLAR BUSINESS — Checking out one of the latest anti-burglar devices at the International Security Conference in Los Angeles this week, Marilyn Jones looks at an arm attached to a window which goes off when the glass is broken. More than 200 companies exhibited the latest products in the security industry of which 1976 sales were over $7 billion.

Made public by American Airlines

List lawmaker contributions

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Airlines made public Wednesday a list of 71 current and former members of Congress and several other politicians who received about $40,000 in corporate contributions between 1971 and 1973.

The law forbids corporate contributions to political campaigns.

Recipients included former President Gerald R. Ford, who got $100; Transportation Secretary Brock Adams, who got $200; House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, who got $100; Senate Republican Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., who got $500; Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, who got $400.

Others included Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, who got $100; Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.V., chairman of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce, who got $250; Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.V., chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee, who got $500, and Sen. Robert P. Griffin, D-Mich., former Senate minority whip, who got $1,000.

The only other current or former member of Congress to receive $1,000 or more was former Rep. Ed Edmonson of Oklahoma, who received $1,100.

The payments were disclosed in an American Airlines filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission as part of an administrative settlement of the airline's failure to report to stockholders its political activities from 1964 through 1973.

The settlement requires American to amend earlier reports to the commission and mail to any stockholder who asks copies of the report and SEC settlement.

The filing did not say whether recipients knew the money came from corporate funds.

American pleaded guilty in 1973 to charges of contributing $55,000 to former President Richard M. Nixon's re-election campaign. It paid a $5,000 fine on those charges, then was hit with a $150,000 fine by the Civil Aeronautics Board about two years later.

The report provided some new details on the Nixon contribution, which totalled $75,000, including $20,000 of personal funds which American officers added to the corporate money.

The report said Daniel Hofgren, an official of the investment banking firm of Goldman, Sachs and Co., acted as an intermediary in setting up a luncheon fund-raising pitch to American officials by Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's attorney. Kalmbach and other committee officials tried at least three times to get American to increase the size of its contribution to $100,000.

The disclosure of the congressional donations and of state and local contributions was the first detailed accounting of how American spent that money.

The company estimated donations in 1971 totaled $35,000 to $40,000 and included $17,000 spent by the airline's Washington representative, $13,000 distributed to regional and field officers, about $4,000 paid out by American officers from New York and a $3,000 contribution to the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee.

In all, American estimated it made 110 contributions, with some people receiving more than one contribution.

Other activities disclosed in the American report included an estimated $44,000 received as advertising or promotional allowances and other discounts on beer and liquor purchases.

GIRL AND HER DOLPHIN

Soaking up the California sun are Nemo, the dolphin, and his trainer, Donna Prince, during winter break at Mariott's Great America in Santa Clara, Calif.

Military blamed in most cases

OCEANSIDE (AP) — Police say children are being beaten at an alarming rate — 270 child abuse cases investigated last year compared with 54 two years before.

The military is blamed for possibly two-thirds of such cases, investogators say. Marine families are the most transient element in Oceanside.

"We may know of only 5 or 10 per cent of all the cases," says Ollie MacDonald, a veteran police investigator.

"Emotional abuse is the hardest to detect, of course, and Camp Pendleton authorities are starting to report their cases directly to Washington."

The Marine Corps and Chief of Police Rolf Henze are working cooperatively by getting together parents, psychologists and counselors in an effort to prevent child abuse.

At least three groups of "Parents Anonymous" also meet in northern San Diego County. Classes are conducted by trained police officers. A child abuse council was formed recently at Camp Pendleton.

There are several hundred parents, most of whom have seen or heard of child abuse in the Oceanside-Vista area, attending the classes voluntarily.

A counselor in the Oceanside juvenile bureau says possibly two-thirds of the child abuse takes place in families of Marines, often with the father or mother away or under strain of emotions or money problems.

The victims in 80 per cent of the cases are children under the age of 6, counselor Jean Krahling said in an interview. Protective custody was given 81 children in the first seven months of last year.

The National Center for Child Abuse in Denver, Colo., said that Oceanside's sharp upturn in such cases may be only the result of better reporting. Investigator MacDonald said she believes "public awareness" is also responsible because "people are starting to do something about child abuse and they know we have resources now to help them."

Dr. Henry Kempe, director of the Denver center, said Oceanside's figures may be routine for cities near major military bases.

Dr. Vincent DeFrancis, children's director of the American Humane Association, said statistics by cities are meaningless.

MacDonald, one of those who conduct classes, agrees with Kempe that Southern Californians are "more aware of child abuse — and thus the reporting rate could be higher than elsewhere."

The potential for still more is there, however, she says after conducting classes in which she asks: "Is there anyone here who thinks he is capable of child abuse?"

"In a class of 30 or so, at least three or four always raise their hands," she said.

Temple sues for price of religion

MIAMI (AP) — Richard and Nina Kaufman say they're bitter over the price of religion. A Jewish synagogue has filed suit against them for $235 in unpaid membership dues.

"What's the price of God?" Mrs. Kaufman asked. "This is religion? Sure, it's my obligation as a Jew to help the synagogue. But just what is a fair share? Unbelievable."

But leaders of the 64-year-old temple, one of Miami's first, say the synagogue can't exist on promises and that the Kaufmans promised to pay dues while they were members from August 1973 until late 1974.

The suit filed by the Beth David Synagogue of Miami was scheduled for trial this week.

"People think the preacher doesn't have to live, that the rabbi doesn't have to live, that the synagogue doesn't have to live," said Samuel Badanes, the congregation's vice president. "The church always gets the bottom of the heel."

Rabbi Sol Landau said he tries to remain detached from financial affairs, but he said he had "great reservations" about the suit, "because of the kind of institution we are."

Beth David lists an annual budget of nearly $600,000, plus a building fund, the expense of Sunday and Hebrew schools as well as the expense of a staff to accommodate 850 member families.

"We can't exist on people owing us money," Badanes said. "Something had to be done. It might be wrong, it might be right. But it's the way we're doing it."

Mrs. Kaufman said the couple was married at the temple in 1973 because "It was important to us to include a strong religous life in marriage."

But the Kaufmans, real estate agents, said they fell on hard times during the 1974 recession.

"Finally, it came to a choice, between paying the synagogue and paying the mortgage. We paid the mortgage," Mrs. Kaufman said.

Besides, she became pregnant. In the fall of 1974, behind in their dues, they dropped membership. They moved to nearby Hollywood where they now live with their 2-year-old son David.

"It's not the money," said Mrs. Kaufman, adding the couple's financial situation is much better now. "We can pay the $235. It's the way they went about this that I resent. How many people have been treated this way?"

The synagogue's lawyer, Michael Gale, said, "When you sign for membership, you agree to pay dues. They knew they were obligating themselves." He said many delinquent members arrange to pay back dues through small weekly payments.

Valentine vignettes

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Humorous, heartwarming stories involving people and romance are a natural by-product of St. Valentine's day, says Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins, who collects them.

One husband took his wife into domestic relations court complaining she had received 27 valentines from her "circle of boy friends." In court the woman sheepishly admitted to the judge that one person had sent them all — herself.

Some years ago TV personality Garry Moore surprised his wife on Feb. 14 by hiring four sky-writing planes to draw a heart three miles wide, pierced by an arrow six miles long, with Garry and Nell written inside.

In England romantics no longer send valentines in the form of checks on the "Bank of Love." They were banned for looking too much like the real thing.

Canning plant manager criticizes crackdown

Roundup of illegal aliens hurts Upland company

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

The plant manager of an Upland canning company whose labor force was reduced by a roundup of more than 150 illegal aliens during the past two weeks has criticized the U.S. Border Patrol and the U.S. Immigration Service.

"I recognize the problem of too many illegal aliens being hired by U.S. employers, particularly in California where the unemployment rate remains higher than the national average," said Donald Graber, manager of the Old Ranchers Canning Co., Upland.

"But the federal government has been letting it (the hiring of illegal aliens) go on for so long — and now it cracks down.

"Somehow, it doesn't seem fair to anyone."

Graber said the recent roundup of the illegal aliens, mostly from Mexico, in the Upland area has hurt the cannery's operation.

"But the fact remains that without the illegal aliens on the production line I would have a far more employe turnover and a great many more problems," said Graber.

He said it has been his company's experience that the aliens on his production line "turned out to be the better workers and usually stayed longer on the job than their American counterparts."

He said that the aliens, despite the minimum wage paid, "take great pride in their work."

Regarding wages, Graber explained, "We are in a very competitive business with a low profit margin and frankly, can't afford to pay our workers more."

He said the workers on the production line, who bone, clean, sort and steam chicken products for canning, receive from $2.50 to $2.75 per hour on an eight- to nine-hour shift.

Other workers who have been with the company longer may receive up to $3.50 per hour, while piece workers and technologists receive more.

The U.S. Border Patrol, however, claims a number of aliens arrested near the cannery Tuesday said they were receiving $2.25 per hour.

Officials of the U.S. Border Patrol and the U.S. Immigration Service recently announced the number of complaints about illegal aliens had increased because of the high unemployment rate.

Graber said he would argue with those who believe all money earned by the illegal aliens is sent back to Mexico and little is spent in this country.

"Many of the illegals in the area have been here for many years and have their families here. The families do spend their money in the U.S. and help the American economy.

"Somehow, it just doesn't seem fair to me that many of those who have been here for a long time are suddenly caught and sent back to their country. Some were even very close to emigrating legally," said Graber.

He said the government, because of economic pressures, "shouldn't panic over the illegal alien problem, but rather go about solving it in a methodical way. Perhaps everyone in this country should have a work card, one that could not be forged."

Graber said as an employer, the government does not require him to ask for any identification other than a Social Security card. And in the U.S., anyone who wishes to work merely goes to the nearest Social Security office and picks up a card. A birth certificate or other proof of citizenship is not required.

"All we ask our employes for are their names and their Social Security cards. What else should we ask for?" asked Graber.

"When the federal government asks us for immigration cards, we will ask for immigration cards," he added.

Graber said he has suspected job applicants of being illegal aliens, but there is no law that says he can't hire them unless he is absolutely sure of their status.

He admitted that when border officers come into the area, many of his production line workers decide to flee. "I have not encouraged them either to leave or stay. It's up to them. But I have told them that it just doesn't pay to run."

Graber said that a home that border patrol officers raided at 184 S. Third Ave., Upland, Tuesday morning, taking 17 illegal aliens into custody, is owned by his father who also owns the canning company.

He said no one ever told the aliens to take refuge in the home when border patrolmen were in the area.

"In fact," said Graber, "the home had been rented up until several months ago."

The home itself is suspected of being a "harboring house" for illegal aliens allegedly working at the cannery, said border patrol officials who have launched an investigation into its use.

Harboring an illegal alien is a felony crime and is punishable under the federal law by fines and or jail terms.

MSAC board offers tough teacher pact

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

A teachers' contract that calls for, among other things, some pay cuts, split shifts, and additional hours of work, is proposed by trustees of the Mt. San Antonio College District.

It is the toughest contract proposal offered so far to any of the teacher groups in the valley. It is scheduled for a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 23, as required by law.

The proposal follows one submitted by the teachers two months ago which seeks the adoption of a pay scale based on the cost of living index, plus an additional three per cent raise.

Under the law the actual contract negotiations start after the Feb. 23 public hearing.

Pat Perez, president of the faculty association, said the trustees' proposal was "totally unacceptable." She called it a total one-sided instrument, pointing out as an example that proposed agreement devoted six pages to management rights, but only three lines to employe rights.

Under the board's proposal, all part-time teachers would take pay cuts ranging from 21 cents to $1 an hour, while full-time teachers in the higher brackets would have to earn 10 additional graduate credits to qualfy for raises to which they are now entitled.

The proposal also would require full-time teachers to be on the campus seven hours a day and 35 hours a week. Right now the teachers are in the classroom for 15 hours and on the campus for an additional 15.

As for the hours, the instructors could be required to spend their time on the campus from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. at the discretion of the administration.

The proposal also provides that salary increases be based not so much on length of service and graduate work but on evaluation of performance.

Grievances are defined by the suggested contract as violations of the agreement, and leave out provisions for unfair practices or dissatisfactions.

The proposal calls for a two-year contract and provides there shall be no strikes or stoppages.

James Simpson, vice president in charge of business services, who is the head of the board management team, admitted that the contract was "tough" but pointed out that "some of the provisions are obviously negotiable."

He said that the law requires a "sunshine period" of at least two weeks — a period during which the proposal can be studied — before the public hearing can be held.

Looking ahead at Expo 81

Valley businessmen fear disruptions

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Cucamonga, Alta Loma and Etiwanda businessmen are concerned Expo 81 could disrupt West End industrial operations and leave "reversionary" economic conditions in its wake.

A panel of businessmen discussed the possible effects of an international exposition at the Ontario Motor Speedway Wednesday during a luncheon meeting of the Cucamonga Chamber of Commerce. The obvious interest of the business community on the subject was shown in the record 75 attending the meeting at the Magic Lamp Restaurant in Cucamonga.

Randy Bond, manager of Southern California Edison, moderated the panel that discussed the effects of the exposition on schools, sewerage and water systems, industrial operations, commercial business, highways and traffic, and the aftereffects when the exposition closes down.

The majority of the panel presented negative views of Expo 81. They agreed with Lee Hemenover of California Finished Metals who commented "I'm not opposed to growth, only sudden growth."

Charles West of Abitibi Corp. detailed the present school population picture in the tri-communities. Alta Loma High was built for a capacity of 1,525 students, but currently has 2,100 students with only 10 temporary classrooms. He cited figures of 2,344 for the 1977-78 school year and this would escalute to nearly 2,600 by 1980 based only on the current head count in feeder schools.

Those figures do not take into consideration the 7,600 approved residential lots and acceleration of single family home construction now being experienced.

Additional demand on sewers and water will aggravate systems currently undergoing a capacity problem, West added.

George Raschke of California Finished Metals pointed out that numerous industries had located in the area because of isolation from incompatible zone uses. His co-worker Lee Hemenover reported that during the California Jam rock concert at OMS, the plant had to be closed down for a day because employes couldn't get to work because of traffic congestion.

Expo 81 would be a greater disruption, interfering with the transport of 30 daily loads of coiled steel, increasing costs because of that lost time and that loss being passed on to the customers in extra charges, according to Hemenover.

Raschke voiced irritation about the possibility of zone changes that would allow such uses as campsites and hotels on property adjacent to industrial establishments. Development in the area, he continued, would be curtailed because of unpredictable development patterns.

Ed Murray of Ed's Television worried about the influx of shoplifters and bad check passers at local shops while Jack Miller of Ameron Steel questioned the "epilogue" effects. He was skeptic about the unemployment catastrophe that now grips the West End being solved by Expo 81.

"Whenever you overstimulate the economy and remove the cash flow you may have reversionary effects," Murray said. "You're overstimulating the labor force and then removing the reason for people being here. This will cause some disruption in our communities."

Berger Neilsen, Ontario Chamber of Commerce manager, and Fred Ireland, United Airlines manager at Ontario International Airport, offered the only positive notes on Expo 81.

Ireland said "Tourism in Southern California affects every one of us and is an extremely important part of our livelihood either from a regional or state point of view. It's a big business and a very profitable one. It will bring in millions of dollars that are left here . . . and (will be) productive in the development of any community or state."

Ireland felt Expo 81 would provide "many advantages that we cannot grasp or see today."

Ray Smartis, OMS manager, rebuted some allegations made by panel members. He argued that "if the expo is planned properly there won't be any problems," and that businessmen should not anticipate all the negative possibilities to materialize but work toward solving those problems.

Kim found guilty in slaying at APC

Ki Duc Kim, 24-year-old Los Angeles man, was ruled guilty Wednesday of second-degree murder in the stabbing death of David Kim Brunk, 20, in a music practice room of Azusa Pacific College on Oct. 7.

The verdict was the most severe the trial judge, Roberta Ralph, allowed the panel to consider. The prosecution had sought a first-degree murder conviction, but the judge ruled at the close of the people's presentation that it was not a first-degree murder case.

The judge gave the jury choices of innocent or guilty of either second-degree murder or voluntary manslaughter. Earlier, the defense attorney, Deputy Public Defender Clark Shacklett had unsuccessfully requested a judgement of acquittal by the judge.

Brunk, of Ontario, was slain as the result of a rivalry between him and Ki Kim over a young woman, the prosecution charged.

LAFC endorses tri-communities proposal

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Plans to incorporate Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda as one city received a major boost Wednesday from the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFC).

Commissioners, on a 5-1 vote, ordered the staff to prepare a resolution endorsing the tri-communities proposal over another plan to incorporate Alta Loma by itself.

The action followed a sometimes emotional, four-hour public hearing in which citizens favoring each incorporation proposal aired their views.

LAFC, a state regulatory body established in San Bernardino County, also adopted the environmental impact report on the incorporation, which has been deemed "adequate" and as having no adverse affect on the environment. The incorporation has been found to have no "significant effect on the environment."

The resolution recommending incorporation of the tri-communities will come back to LAFC for final approval on March 9. The recommendation would then be sent to the county Board of Supervisors for final action. A November election, allowing voters to have the final determination, has tentatively been planned.

Commissioner Leonard Frketich, a Chino City Council member, cast the only negative vote on incorporation. He indicated the entire area would not have enough taxes to support it as a city.

"Both sides feel capable of running the city with no extra tax and providing the same services as the county." (A $1.06 tax rate per $100 of assessed valuation is proposed for the new city, which is no change from what residents pay now to the county.)

The LAFC staff recommended a $1.25 tax rate be established, however.

Other commissioners favored the tri-communities proposal, however. Their remarks indicated a preference for the three communities formed as one rather than Alta Loma by itself.

"Alta Loma is a bedroom city, and a bedroom city doesn't fly," said James Gilliam, a Barstow city councilman.

Chairman William Hartzell said Alta Loma is too small and wouldn't have the commercial-industrial tax base. "The tri-communities is the only viable alternative here."

The LAFC indicated it wanted to keep the Foothill Fire Protection District and Cucamonga County Water District as separate entities, but dissolve the CSA 50 (park and recreation district) and allow the new city to assume that task.

The new city would have a population of 25,000, 32 square miles and assessed valuation of $130 million.

In defense of the mails

The weather has replaced everything else as the No. 1 topic of discussion among Americans. But when spring comes, as it will, renewed controversy over the fate of the U.S. Postal Service won't be far behind.

As everyone knows, since passage of the Postal Reorganization Act of 1971 (which transformed the system into a part-public, part-private agency), the cost of a first-class stamp has more than doubled — from six to 13 cents. The General Accounting Office (GAO), which continually audits the service, warns that first-class rates will reach 19 cents next year and 34 cents by 1984 unless Congress votes larger subsidies.

It's hard to find anyone who's happy with the Postal Service or optimistic about its future.

A poll conducted by a newspaper in one midwestern city found that the overwhelming majority of people asked said they would rather have mail deliveries cut to three times a week than pay more for stamps or subsidies. But most said they didn't like any of the alternatives.

Even more concerned about the prospect of higher postal rates is a business whose livelihood depends upon people keeping those cards and letters coming. The National Association of Greeting Card Publishers calls for a "Postal Bill of Rights" guaranteeing reliable service at reasonable rates. It points out that first-class mail generates about 57 per cent of all Postal Service revenues.

In testimony before the commission on Postal Service at a hearing in Cleveland the other day, an executive of one of the association's largest members supported a bill introduced in the U.S. Senate last April that would return first-class rates to 10 cents for individual mail users.

"We feel that Mr. and Mrs. Public have taken it in the pocketbook far too long and have been charged with additional rates to pay for services given other class mail users, said Richard H. Connor, marketing vice president of American Greetings Corp.

The surprising fact, though, is that the U.S. Postal Service is far more effective than all the complaints and warnings would indicate. The latest report of the GAO found that as of March of last year, the Postal Service:

was handling from five to 54 times more mail than any of the 10 major overseas postal systems (Australia, Belgium, Canada, France, Japan, Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom and West Germany); was handling more letters per postal employee than these countries;

was covering a larger area and,

was the cheapest of any of these countries except Canada.

More important, the GAO reports that delivery performance has steadily improved. Overnight delivery of first-class mail destined for local areas is consistently achieved at least 95 per cent of the time; two-day delivery within a 600-mile radius is achieved 94 per cent of the time, and three-day mail delivery to all other areas occurs 93 per cent of the time.

In 1970, when the reorganization act was being considered, general deterioration of mail service was marked by major breakdowns in which millions of pieces of mail were delayed for weeks. The workforce was oversized and underpaid and morale was at an all-time low.

Today, five billion more letters are being handled by 65,000 fewer employes than in 1970, and the employes are better paid and better trained and work in better surroundings with better equipment.

If productivity had not been improved and had employment continued at the historical rate, the Postal Service would have 100,000 more employes today than it had in 1970, rather than 65,000 fewer.

In short, the Postal Service has made significant progress towards becoming the kind of system Americans need and want, while operating under tremendous burdens. Certainly, we should not give up hope on it now.

Joyce Hifler

Think on these things

We never fail to ask ourselves that ancient question, "Does it pay to try to help someone who seems to be in need?" We tend to ask it even more resignedly if help has been extended before and it didn't seem to do a lot of good.

It is true that until people are aware of what causes them to get back into the same trouble they were in once before, the chances of really helping are very slim. But how can we judge such a thing? We're inclined to believe our help should last forever and ever when it was really just to give someone another chance, a temporary relief. And we can never know when the tide will turn or an act of kindness will change someone's whole attitude and consciousness of right. If we're going to give something, then give it wholly. If we're going to leave a string attached then we can expect to be disenchanted.

It depends on who's late

Dear Editor:

As I was reading the front page of the Jan. 24 edition of the Progress Bulletin I noticed the very important news story you printed about Amy Carter being late for school. I am a junior at Claremont High School and wanted you to know I was also late for school that day but didn't find the story in the paper about me.

Does a story this newsworthy belong on the front page? Does it belong in the paper at all? There were many articles on the second and third pages that seemed much more important than a little girl being late for school.

The only reason you printed the story was because she is the daughter of the President of the United States. The American people elected Jimmy Carter and would like to know what he is doing for us, not for himself and family.

Don't penalize sportsman

Dear Editor:

I remember reading an article in the Progress Bulletin about a woman who killed members of her family, then herself, using a $51.50 handgun which she bought at a gun shop. This story, which was on the front page, implied that she had just purchased the gun.

Federal law requires that a person must wait 15 days for security clearance before they are able to acquire a pistol. That fact was completely omitted from the story and I am disappointed in that.

I am for the laws which put criminals who use guns behind bars for good. But don't penalize the sportsman or person who just target practices by implying every handgun is used to murder and rob.

Nixon delays TV appearance

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon, that lonely, suspicious former president who fought so hard for public approval and was rebuffed so often, is still grimly determined to regain the respect of his countrymen.

At his San Clemente exile, he is totally absorbed in his last battle for public esteem. He is pouring his heart into his memoirs and preparing for a marathon television appearance with David Frost.

But the autobiography is going so painstakingly slow that he offered Frost $100,000 to postpone the filming of the television interviews for two months.

The two men, with producer Marvin Minoff sitting in, discussed the delay at San Clemente. Nixon said he would like to hold up the filming, scheduled for January, until he caught up on his memoirs. He blamed the slowdown on the difficulty he has encountered consulting his tapes and papers, which are tied up in Washington by the courts.

"Look," said Nixon, "I'll give you back $100,000 if you'll postpone the time. I can't do it while I'm working on the book this way."

Frost is paying Nixon an estimated $600,000 for the TV deal. Although Frost was upset over holding up the interviews, he agreed to a two-month postponement and generously rejected the $100,000.

Both Frost and Lazar explained that the agent always receives the payment and distributes the money. "I never heard of that," grumped Nixon. He cooled down, however, after Lazar promised to deliver Nixon's share within 24 hours after the check was deposited.

The former president stands to collect an additional more than $2 million from Warner Books for his memoirs. He now hopes to complete the manuscript by next December 21.

Under the new agreement with Frost, Nixon will submit to 24 hours of questioning in front of the cameras. The filming will begin in March, however, instead of January. The 17 hours of "out-takes," the unused parts of the film, will become Frost's property. But he cannot use them without Nixon's permission.

It's the desire to restore his name more than the money that is driving Nixon, his friends say. This dogged, dauntless man, with the unfortunate sloping nose, the marionette hand gestures and the robot-like personality, desperately wants to be remembered favorably.

They insist there is a warm, shy, sensitive man beneath the psychological scar tissue he accumulated as he drove himself into one bruising battle after another, slashing his way to the top, suffering inwardly from the political shellfire.

The friends say this deeply private Nixon will reveal himself at last in the painstaking memoirs and the seven hours on the TV tube. His marathon TV appearance, they predict, will have the impact of "Roots."

But his critics are skeptical. They suspect he will try to duplicate his celebrated 1952 performance, a TV appeal to the nation during which he invoked every emotional gimmick from his little dog "Checkers" to his wife's cloth coat. They expect to see the same old Nixon, as evasive and artificial and self-serving as ever.

BLOOD MONEY — The profiteers at Rockwell International apparently don't care how they make a buck. They recently attempted to sell $5 million worth of sophisticated fingerprint identification equipment to the repressive Chilean military dictatorship.

The deal was stopped cold by the federal government. Officials turned down the company's request for an export license, because of the possibility that the fingerprint machine could be used for political repression.

Every Chilean citizen is required to carry an identification card, stamped with his fingerprints, at all times. With Rockwell's new gismo, the Chilean police could sort out and identify with frightening efficiency whose prints belonged to whom.

A Rockwell spokesman said the federal officials apparently misunderstood "the use and nature of the equipment." It would be used by the national police for crime detection, not the secret police for political suppression, the spokesman said.

The license application lists the purchaser as Chile's Ministry of Defense. Both police agencies are under its wing.

Meanwhile, Computer Decisions, a computer trade magazine, is preparing to publish a disturbing account of how Latin American dictatorships are using computers as tools of oppression.

The unpublished article describes how the Chilean junta rounded up masses of suspected dissidents, confiscated their identification cards and then used computers to compare the cards with dossiers.

In all too many countries, spying devices and intrusive interrogations have been brought together in eternal union. Now the use of computerized master files could extinguish forever the right of privacy in those countries.

A woman President?

On his way out of office, then-President Ford was asked about the likelihood of a woman President. He predicted that we will have one within 20 years — but that she will have to succeed to the Presidency from the Vice Presidency.

The inference is that women, for all their equal opportunity, in politics are not yet "considered equal."

And India has Indira Gandhi.

She still is and it's still necessary.

Next month Indians will vote and her Congress Party will win overwhelmingly.

That will constitute an immense vote-of-confidence in a superwoman administrator.

Twenty months ago there was such turmoil in India — political rioting, disruptive labor strife — that India's economy was stagnating and Prime Minister Gandhi's political future was in jeopardy.

She did what she had to do. Because self-government without self-discipline won't work, she declared a state of emergency — canceled elections, stifled political dissent, jailed troublemakers, imposed censorship and restored order.

Strikes, slowdowns, walkouts — formerly endemic in Indian industry — are now nil. There is no street rioting. And Indian trains are again running on time.

So now, hopeful that her 612 million people have "learned to behave," she will let them try self-government again.

She has eased censorship, ordered the release of political prisoners, reallowed political rallies and scheduled parliamentary elections for mid-March.

India's newspapers are again printing the statements and pictures of opposition political figures — though Prime Minister Gandhi has told the news media that she will tolerate nothing inflammatory, nothing that would disturb public law and order.

Most of India's news media people recognize the necessity for this guideline. Many freely applaud Mrs. Gandhi's imposed discipline which rescued India from chaos.

Industrial productivity has jumped.

The Indian rupee has never been more stable.

Indira Gandhi is grooming her second son, Sanjay, to carry on. He will run for a seat in parliament next month.

But whether or not this is the beginning of a dynasty, another woman has demonstrated there is no job too big.

Discrimination on Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Although ethics reform is the height of fashion on Capitol Hill these days, Congress is still resolutely clinging to one of its most shameful practices: widespread discrimination in the treatment of its own employees.

With approximately 17,000 workers and a billion-dollar budget, Congress ranks as a big business indeed. Yet, unlike the rest of the government and all of private industry, it remains exempt from laws prohibiting discrimination in employment. Why? Because that's the way it wrote those laws.

Furthermore, the movers and shakers on Capitol Hill show every intention of fighting growing pressures for change.

Just two weeks ago, Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and GOP Leader John J. Rhodes asked the Justice Department to intervene on behalf of former Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., in a sex discrimination case now pending in the federal courts.

A three-judge appellate court in New Orleans last month ruled that notwithstanding Congress' efforts to exempt itself from fair employment laws, Passman was not immune from a discrimination suit filed by a former employee he had fired in July 1974 on grounds he wanted to fill her job with a man.

"Our Constitution," the court said, "protects individual rights, even against the mighty."

A struggling group of reformers within the House reacted with astonishment and rage to the discovery that the leadership satraps were seeking Justice Department help in defending Passman's (and their own) right to discriminate. They plan to notify the court that not all members of Congress share this above-the-law attitude.

The group is the House Fair Employment Practices Committee, an unofficial and completely voluntary organization established last year in the wake of the Elizabeth Ray-Wayne Hays sex scandal which focused so much attention on Capitol Hill employment practices.

So far, the committee has cajoled 95 House members into signing a pledge that they will not discriminate by race, sex, religion, age, national origin, handicap, marital or parental status in hiring, paying and promoting their employees.

But that leaves 340 House members free to exercise their biases, not to mention 100 senators who have shown absolutely no interest in reforming their discriminating ways.

"What we have here on Capitol Hill is the last plantation," said Colleen O'Connor, a top staff aide to Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., who is chairing the fair practices panel.

Not a single member of the House leadership has signed the voluntary non-discrimination pledge. In fact, the bigwigs are doing their best to ignore the existence of the fair practices committee and to make life difficult for the panel by denying it office space, funding and so forth.

"I think they're hoping that we just wear down," said Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., one of the committee's original organizers. "We had hoped the Passman case would make them realize they're going to have to do something, but apparently not."

"Personnel practices," she added, "are the last thing anyone attends to around here. Employees are treated like lamps or typewriters — you just wear 'em out, turn 'em in and get a new one."

The fair practices panel, however, is about to solicit some hard facts from all 17,000 of those "lamps contributed funds, is conducting a detailed survey of Capitol Hill employment practices as seen by the drones, not the druids.

"A statistical base is crucial if we're going to convince anyone that change is really needed," O'Connor said. "We're going to build a case for bringing the Congress into the 20th century in terms of employment practices and civil rights."

Just in jest

In "The Outline of History," H.G. Wells wrote: "Human history becomes more and more a race between education and catastrophe." — Then there was the fellow who said: "A little learning is a dangerous thing." — Both authorities, it now appears, were guilty of gross understatement. Today learning is not only dangerous but in some instances it has become almost foolhardy to pursue it.

At UCLA it is now necessary to provide escort service for women students who have to cross the campus at night. And right here in Pomona the pursuit of knowledge has become so hazardous it is being proposed that police guards be stationed at all our high schools during school hours.

But then, as some old Greek once remarked: "By suffering comes wisdom."

Ann Landers

Shoe's on the other foot

Dear Ann Landers: I've read your column for years and agree with you nine times out of ten. It's bizarre that I now find myself writing for advice.

A few months ago, I learned I have an incurable (and possibly terminal) illness. It was a blow at first, but I've adjusted my thinking and have no trouble handling it.

The problem is my husband. He insists that our children be told. We have two married daughters and a 15-year-old son. I see no reason to upset their lives prematurely. Right now I feel good and the symptoms are easy to hide. To my way of thinking nothing can be accomplished by telling them news that may cause undue anxiety.

My husband insists that as members of the family they have a right to know. I say, since I'm the person with the illness, I have the right to keep it from them as long as possible — if I choose.

I don't like what this is doing to my relationship with my husband. I think he will listen to you. Please be on my side. Thanks, Ann. — Arlene

Dear Arlene: I AM on your side — and you don't need to thank me. Although you didn't identify the illness, I have an idea what it is. Your chances for winning the battle are a lot better than they were ten years ago.

If you don't want the children to know until you feel like telling them, your wishes should be respected. Insist on it.

Dear Ann: Recently a reader asked, "How does one cope with an 'unhappy' marriage?" I have some answers.

1. I ask myself from time to time, "How perfect am I?"

2. I look at the troubles my friends are having with THEIR husbands, and my problems seem a lot smaller.

3. I know my husband will always take care of the mortgage payments, taxes, the phone, gas and the electric bills, etc.

4. He would never go through my purse or listen in on my phone conversation.

In other words, he trusts me because I have earned it.

5. He eats whatever I prepare and never complains.

6. He is solicitous if I am ill. (He really cares.)

7. A fair argument with some feathers flying can be a wonderful safety valve.

After all, who is completely happy all the time? — Cherished In Ohio

Dear Cherished: You sound like a realistic, feet-on-the-ground lady. If the wives out there who think their marriages are lousy will read your list carefully, they'll feel a lot better.

Dear Ann: My neighbor makes extreme statements about people we both know. Some of the things she says are hard to believe and impossible to prove, unless you went right to the person and asked him to his face. Most of her information is so personal, I wouldn't dare.

When I show signs of disbelief she gets out the family bible and takes an oath on it. What do you think of this? — Big Q.

Dear Q.: People of integrity expect to be believed. They also know time will prove them right and are willing to wait. To a liar, a bible oath means nothing. It wouldn't impress me in the slightest.

Typewriters start quarrel

Somebody just proposed that only French and Belgian typewriters be used at the European Community headquarters in Brussels, Belgium. Do you realize what this will mean, if such comes to pass? The French and Belgian secretaries, already irate over the number of American and British girls employed there, will suddenly have an enormous advantage. The typewriter keyboards are different. The French and Belgian secretaries would be mighty comfortable with the native typewriters. But the American and British secretaries would have to adjust, no easy chore for an experienced touch typist, or go elsewhere for work. The French and Belgian girls are said to by lobbying for the typewriter standardization to go their way, lobbying most heatedly.

FOSSIL

Q. "How old does something have to be before it's called a 'fossil'?"

A. At least 10,000 years. That is, if you use the word to refer to the remnant or evidence of some sort of organism. But there are other kinds of fossils, too. Fossil words, for instance. Consider the phrase "to and fro." You never see the word "fro" outside that phrase. It's a fossil.

Q. "Is there an ethnic group anywhere whose people don't get cancer?"

A. Only one. The Hounzas in the Himalayas north of Kashmir. No cancer case has ever been diagnosed among them. Correspondents insist that's not because their doctors just failed to identify the ailment. Western-trained physicians have worked there, too. The why of it all remains a mystery, although reporters think the fact that the Hounzas eat only fresh food they grow themselves might have something to do with it.

TARS

You know why the traditional seaman's uniform has a large square collar? Because seamen in bygone years braided their hair in pigtails and kept those pigtails from unraveling by daubing the ends with tar. Those collars kept the upper part of the uniforms from turning black. No doubt you already knew that the afore-described, too, is why seamen were nicknamed "tars."

The Public Library in Bethlehem, N.Y., keeps on file the current menus of approximately 40 restaurants thereabouts. Not a bad notion. If you so wish, you can check out what's being served for how much all over the area before booking reservations or walking in to be seated.

You'll probably get it just about right if you reckon that the depreciation on your car costs you approximately five cents a mile. A little more than the cost of the gasoline itself, typically.

Ice has covered much of North America nine times in the last million years, and that's not counting this year.

Dr. Miller

Brushing the canine's canines

DEAR DR. MILLER: Mitzi didn't like her toothpaste. I tried it and I didn't like it either. I tried her with my toothpaste, and she likes it a little better than she did hers. Would it be good for a dog? — T.K.

DEAR T.K.: While your toothpaste in quantity wouldn't be good for her, a small amount, particularly if used for brushing her teeth, could be. When Mitzi's brushing (or, if you're doing it for her), she's more likely to swallow the toothpaste than to spit it out, and consuming quantities of yours could cause some stomach irritation. The best bet then (and it applies to most teeth) is to depend more on the brushing than on the paste to get the job done.

DEAR DR. MILLER: When our eight-year-old dog died of breast cancer, we mourned her, then got a cat. The cat died when it was two years old from cancer in the lymph glands. Is cancer common, or were we just unlucky? Could the cat's cancer have been related to the dog's? — S.F.

DEAR S.F.: The most common malignancies in dogs are found in the skin and the mammary glands. The highest rate of incidence occurs at around eight years. In cats, the most common are tumors of the lymph glands, especially lymphosarcoma. These lymphoid tumors in cats are more common in younger animals. The above-mentioned canine and feline cancers are unrelated and all too common for their species. Yes, you definitely were unlucky. Prevention is not specifically possible yet, though spayed female dogs have a reduced risk of mammary malignancies. Finding a feline free from leukemia virus (there's a test) and then reducing chances of future transmission by keeping the cat indoors and isolated from other felines would certainly help prevent lymphosarcoma.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Hercules is four months old and growing like a weed. Everything's fine as far as I can tell, except he hasn't started to bark yet. What should we do about this? — V.T.

DEAR V.T.: Be patient. Puppies (presumable Hercules is one?) begin to bark at varying ages and Herc has plenty of time. Should he still be hesitant a few months from now, you could easily encourage him to bark by exposing him for a few days to a dog who does.

My typewriter developed a case of hiccups the other week that nearly drove me up the wall.

Every time I hit the "S" it would rat-a-tat-tat to the end of the line and hiccup in place. I didn't think it was too serious until I got the bill.

"Of course you have a policy on the typewriter, don't you?" asked the repairman, his pencil poised in mid-air.

"Oh sure," I giggled. "My husband and I took out an endowment on it the day it was born. That way we don't have to worry about its education."

"I am quite serious," he said. "A policy on a typewriter is not unusual. Or for that matter, neither is a policy on your washing machine, lawn mower, dishwasher, furnace, picture window, septic tank, or the picture tube on your television set."

"You mean people buy insurance policies on all those inanimate objects?"

"They're the most unpredictable kind. We can pretty much determine the life span of people, but these little turkeys can go just like that!"

"How much money are we talking about?"

"Well, to insure this machine for a year with a minimum of three service calls, including the yearly service and cleaning and a guarantee on the 'S' key against hiccuping, would run somewhere in this neighborhood." He slipped me a piece of paper with a figure on it.

"That's some neighborhood. For a few bucks more, I could have the column carved on stone tables on Mt. Sinai. That typewriter would be worth more to me dead than alive."

"Others have considered that," he said stiffly.

"Are you saying that some people 'do their appliances in' just to collect the insurance?"

He smiled. "Let me just say that there are a lot of little old ladies touring Europe every summer on the insurance money left by their dead dishwashers!"

I told him I'd think about it, but when he left I sat down at my typewriter and got a letter off to his company.

Dr. Lamb

Beware of prostate cancer

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband was one of those unfortunate men who discovered he had cancer of the prostate too late. He was only 54 and his last months were terrible, both psychologically and medically. I appreciate your warning the public about this. Isn't there some way the men can be made more aware of this danger?

DEAR READER — I am sorry to hear about your husband. It is a needless waste in most instances. Cancer of the prostate can be cured if it is detected early enough — the outlook may be even better than the cure rate in early treatment of cancer of the breast.

The first step is public awareness. As I have mentioned before only five per cent of the men with prostate cancer found in civilian populations survive, while 50 per cent of those found and treated at Walter Reed Army Medical Center are cured. The difference is early detection.

In this regard I am disappointed in the American Cancer Society. Normally they do an excellent job and I am a strong booster of their efforts, but they have done almost nothing to educate the public about the third most common cause of death from cancer in men. There are more deaths from prostate cancer in men than from cancer of the uterus in women.

Yet, in an otherwise good publication, The Hopeful Side of Cancer, that points out how many people can be cured of cancer, there is no mention of cancer of the prostate at all or the best method to find it. The way to find it is with a simple finger examination of the rectum. Every male needs to know this and needs to know that he should have such an examination once a year after he reaches age 40. We are not going to save the thousands of men dying from cancer of the prostate until this is understood and accomplished. There is no useful public education program about it.

The American Cancer Society predicts the total of deaths from prostate cancer in 1976 will be 19,300 and only 7,700 from cancer of the cervix and 3,300 from cancer of the body of the uterus. With these kinds of figures why is there no program for public education and a program for early detection and treatment of prostate cancer?

There is also a great need for education of physicians about changes in treatment concepts. The old idea was to not try to cure or eradicate the cancer, but to give female hormones and use castration, if needed, to control symptoms from extension of the cancer. Things have changed. If the cancer is found early enough, radiation treatment will cure the cancer completely and in some instances surgery may be used to obtain a complete cure. In these instances it is not necessary to have either a castration or take female hormones. Radiation even cures some cancers of the prostate that have extended outside the prostate gland.

The public needs to know about this. Any man who is not getting a finger examination once a year by his doctor needs to be sure he starts getting it.

The prostate is no more mysterious than the uterus. Wives should see to it that their husbands take the problem seriously. Those who want more information about the prostate gland, in regard to enlargement, infection and cancer can send 50 cents for The Health Letter Number 1-6. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Write to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Hence, when his partner gave him a positive response to his opening two bid, Z checked for aces and put the contract in seven spades to score the 100 honors in addition to the rubber and grandslam bonuses.

West opened the queen of diamonds. Z played dummy's ace and remarked, "This looks a lot like a hand Sidney Lenz had me play in 1927. It looks as if East is going to show up with five trumps to the ten and I had better plan a double coup."

Then Z came to his hand by ruffing a low diamond and cashed two high trumps. Sure enough, West showed out on the second trump lead.

Now Z cashed his ace and king of hearts and led a club to dummy's queen. This was followed by another diamond ruff to leave Z with three trumps and two clubs. East who had been following suit right along was down to three trumps, one diamond and one club.

Now Z went to dummy with the ace of clubs, led the queen of hearts, showed his hand and claimed.

Note that if Z had not ruffed that diamond at trick two he would not have been able to develop the coup.

Ask the Jacobys

The new duplicate laws about reviews of the bidding are very complicated. They provide that at your turn to bid you can demand a review and that you can also demand a review when it is your turn to play to the first trick. Later on, any player may ask the meaning of any bid made by an opponent or may ask what the final contract is and if it is doubled or redoubled, but he may not ask who doubled or redoubled.

Mexico: America's troubled neighbor

EDITOR'S NOTE — A half a century ago Mexicans fought a bloody revolution aimed at giving the poor a better share of the country's wealth. Now some nine million persons are estimated to be unemployed, and landless peasants are clamoring for land. Following is the first of two reports on Mexico a Troubled Neighbor.

By CHARLES GREEN
Associated Press Writer

QUERETARO, Mexico (AP) — They drift into Queretaro from the mountains and from the farm lands looking for work. If they don't find it here they may drift on 150 miles south to Mexico City.

There they stand in the chilly dawn besides Mexico's National Cathedral, the tools of their trade at their feet.

For hours they wait. Perhaps someone needs a plumber or a handyman or a gardener for a day's work?

Boys so small they have to hop on the hood to wash car windshields at traffic lights on beautiful Paseo de la Reforma Boulevard in Mexico City. They hope for a penny or a nickel tip.

Women with babies on their backs sit on blankets with a display of oranges or apples or pecans. They hope to catch the eye and the coins of a pedestrian.

These are among the millions of Mexicans struggling to earn a bit of money in an economy they do not understand.

Estimates vary on how many people are without work in Mexico but it is perhaps the most serious problem in the country and grows more serious daily.

Realistic estimates put the number of jobless at about nine million or at least 30 per cent of the work force. The conservative magazine Nego-Banco estimates that as many as 16 million may be unemployed.

The president of the College of Economists says four million people between the ages of 18 and 25 were out of work in January.

Unemployment in the United States last month was 7.6 million people or 7.9 per cent of the work force. The United States has 200 million people while Mexico has 63 million.

The Mexican economy now cannot begin to handle the unemployed or absorb the 600,000 to 700,000 persons entering the job market each year. Mexico's 1977 federal budget is $30.8 billion, 38.9 per cent higher than in 1976, even though President Jose Lopez Portillo, who took office in December, has warned that this will be a year of austerity in Mexico. The government apparently is willing to risk fueling even more inflation with a larger budget if it can also stimulate development and create new jobs.

Even for those with jobs the times are not easy in Mexico. They were stunned Sept. 1 by the first devaluation in the Mexican peso in 22 years. Another devaluation quickly followed. Mexicans, who were promised there would be no devaluation, lost faith in the outgoing government of President Luis Echeverria. Money started flowing out of Mexico into banks in other countries.

Larry Law, representative of the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. in Mexico, estimates that Mexico spent so much money trying to support the peso artifically, and so many people took money out of the country, that the nation had only $100,000 in reserves left by the time the Central Bank froze currency exchanges.

An $800 million loan by foreign banks operating in Mexico and additional loans for the International Monetary Fund in Washington bailed the country out.

Economists estimate inflation grew about 35 per cent in Mexico last year. The year before it was 27 per cent and the year before that 25 per cent. Law says private economists figure inflation will grow about 3 per cent a month this year.

For those shopping in the stores and markets of Mexico inflation is much higher.

Official price lists from a major supermarket chain show increases of 250 to 300 per cent in the past five years. Sugar costs 263 per cent more than it did in January 1972. Beans are up 214 per cent. Bread is up 300 per cent. Tortillas increased 300 per cent. Milk 150 per cent, beef 61 per cent.

"The only way I can feed my children with these high prices is by stealing," said Felipe Martinez, a Mexico City bricklayer.

If Martinez stops on his way home to buy tortillas, beans, rice, milk and meat he is likely to spend 56 per cent of the minimum federal wage of $4.32 for a day's work. His groceries would cost him about $2.50.

For two decades Mexico claimed a growth in its gross national product of from 6.5 to 7.3 per cent a year. The future looked rosy for Latin America's fastest developing nation. Now a growth rate of 3 per cent will be considered good.

The future still looks promising, but the honeymoon is over. It ended after the Luis Echeverria government started massive spending programs designed to narrow the gap between rich and poor. It was, Echeverria said, a matter of spend or fight a revolution.

Echeverria moved the government into areas formerly held by the private sector. The government took over a number of companies. Some estimates say the government spent as much as $400 million a year in direct subsidies to more than 800 government - owned businesses ranging from night clubs to newspapers.

Nego-Banco estimates the Echeverria government left office with a 307 billion peso deficit. Under the predevelopment exchange rate of 12 pesos to the dollar that would be about $24.5 billion. The foreign debt was estimated at from $20 billion to $24.6 billion.

The newspaper El Sol — itself one of the companies taken over by the government for a time — estimated that $1.1 billion left Mexico in the three months after the devaluation. Reserves were estimated to have been no more than $1.5 billion when the panic started.

"Echeverria simply tried to do too much, too quickly, with too little," Law said.

Defenders of Echeverria say the former president created a deficit by creating a nation. They predict that future generations will look upon Echeverria as one of the men who pushed Mexico into the 21st century.

His government increased the road system from 43,400 miles to 124,000 miles. It built hundreds of new schools and thousands of new classrooms. The number of university graduates increased 100 per cent in six years. A huge low-income housing project was started throughout the nation. The number of people covered by social security — an expensive form of socialized medicine — increased from 11 million to 25 million.

The Echeverria government spent billions on oil exploration but never said how much reserves had been found. New officials of the government-owned oil monopoly Petroleos Mexicanas — PEMEX — say now the nation has more than 11 billion barrels of proven reserves and may become a major oil exporter. Venezuela has about 17 billion barrels and Saudi Arabia about 148 billion.

In six years Mexico turned from an oil importing nation to an oil exporting nation, and turned from an steel importing nation into a steel exporter.

But Mexico also became a nation that now has to import corn.

While making these advances the Echeverria government alienated conservative businessmen and industrialists. He called them "emissarie of the past" and said they wanted to keep on without change to make themselves even richer instead of helping the poor get a better share of the economic pie. Private investment slowed, production dropped and prices skyrocketed.

"But the long-range outlook is still good," Law said. "Mexico is the leading nation in development in Latin America."

FUNNY BUSINESS By Roger Bollen

Technological century

The predominance of technological power in the United States is little more than 100 years old, The Conference Board notes. It was not until 1870 that the horsepower from all mechanical sources exceeded the horsepower produced by work animals.

State Dept. nearing completion of pact on 200-mile fish limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department is near completion of agreements that will bring 20 per cent of the world's fish under U.S. jurisdiction and possibly affect American diplomatic relations with key allies.

For the past several months, American negotiators have worked to sign accords with maritime nations, restricting their right to fish within 200 miles of the U.S. coast.

Perhaps the most important of the negotiations are continuing at the State Department with Japanese representatives. Japan is the last major fishing nation which hasn't signed an agreement, but U.S officials expect an accord "very quickly."

To date, agreements have been reached with eight countries, including the Soviet Union. Besides Japan, talks are going on with two other countries and the European Economic Community.

In fact, the various agreements do not control fishing itself. Rather they acknowledge the American action. The actual restrictions will be levied unilaterally by the United States later this year following reports from several regional councils.

These agencies, made up of federal, state and regional experts, are in the process of determining the fish stock in their regions, conservation needs, fees and the requirements of the U.S. market.

The regional councils, after first determining allotments for American boats, will then set quotas for other nations, if there is any excess estimated.

This will be the touchiest issue and could ultimately affect trade relations with several of the involved nations. In the most pessimistic analysis, even political dealings with the Soviet Union could be touched.

According to State Department estimates, as many as 500,000 boats will fish within the American 200-mile limit in a year.

Japan last year caught about 1.6 million tons of fish in the U.S. zone, or about 16 per cent of that nation's total catch. While no figures are yet available, these totals are expected to be seriously reduced by the United States since Japanese boats are importantly responsible for the depletion of fish in the northern Pacific.

The other nation to be most seriously affected will be the Soviet Union. Russian boats primarily have worked within the American 200-mile zone in the past, hauling in about 60 per cent of their total catch in those waters.

Last Dec. 10, Moscow also extended its jurisdiction to 200 miles, a move that added to Japan's problems. Japanese fishermen catch even more in Russian waters than in American waters — about 1.8 million tons, or 18 per cent of their aggregate harvest.

Since the Soviet union will be seriously curtailed in U.S. waters, U.S. and Japanese officials expect Moscow to sharply cut Japanese fishing in its waters to recover.

There is little chance the Japanese will get relief from the United States. Regional councils generally will set the regulations without regard to political or diplomatic factors. Further, Congress can veto council findings and the mood on Capitol Hill is distinctly against giving Tokyo a break, according to State Department sources.

While not so seriously involved, Common Market and Latin American nations have warned that they expect to be given consideration when the quotas are set. In other words, they don't want the United States to help Japan at their expense. Otherwise, they will seek counteraction in other trade areas, say State Department sources.

The answer and the hope of avoiding retaliation in other trade areas lies in a successful conclusion of the now moribund Law of the Sea Conference.

Negotiations for a Law of the Sea treaty began in 1974, but broke down last September in an angry fight over exploitation of minerals and other seabed resources.

But a side effect of the dispute was in the halting of progress toward international regulation of fishing, which led to such unilateral actions as setting exclusive 200-mile fishing zones.

According to American officials, the outlook for a Law of the Sea treaty, while not bright, is better because Norway has moved to reopen the negotiations.

If Norway's action is carried out, the United Nations will convene an infor- special session in Geneva late next month. From there, full-scale talks could resume.

If not, the outlook is for a possible trade war by Japan-Europe, pressure by the Soviets, counteraction by South American countries in control of waters where American fishing boats operate, and major violations of the zone by foreign vessels.

Looking at the potential problems, some State Department officials say privately that "we told you so." The Ford administration had opposed the unilateral declaration of the fishing zone on grounds it would only invite retaliation and bitterness.

Even apart from the fishing issue, they still worry about the precedent. Right now, the U.S. law is carefully restricted to fishing, and even excludes tuna from the controls in order to avoid a confrontation with Latin American countries and others that catch the migratory species.

However, other nations might broaden the claims to include not only tuna, but navigation, shipping and oil and other mineral extraction.

There is even worry in the State Department that anger and concern over recent maritime oil spills might lead Congress to unilaterally extend jurisdiction over coastal waters to cover such accidents.

This could lead other nations to claim control over rights of navigation through their coastal waters, straits and other potentially controversial waterways — all at the expense of American boats.

SPACE COMES DOWN TO EARTH — Girl in New York's Central Park demonstrates a Thermos blanket, a byproduct of the super insulating materials developed for the space program. The metallized blankets weigh two ounces and measure seven by four feet and can be folded to pocket size. When wrapped tightly around the body they reflect back 80 per cent of the body's heat, enough to survive in outdoor cold. Thousands have been shipped to cold-plagued states.

Plastic sheets warm family at 48 below

WAHKON, Minn. (AP) — David and Lois Bassett and their three children are snug and warm, even though several layers of plastic sheeting are all that separate them from temperatures as cold as 48 below zero.

The Bassett family is spending one of the coldest Minnesota winters on record in a shelter made of tree branches covered with polyethylene sheets.

Bassett, 25, said the winter weather scared the family a little, but they wanted to get onto their own land so he built the shelter near Mille Lacs Lake in central Minnesota in November.

It took two days to build the shelter and install a metal heating stove so Mrs. Bassett, 23, and the children — April, 5; Nathan, 1½, and Benjamin, 3 months — could move in.

The house was built by bending over tree branches to form the outline and support for it. The house has a wood back and front and see-through plastic sides. No windows were needed, but there is a vent at the top for a stovepipe and a little air for ventilation does get in because the plastic is not sealed tightly.

The wood used to warm the shelter and for cooking is scrap left by a logging company which formerly owned the land. During the day, the sun helps warm the shelter, and Bassett said one log will keep the home warm. At night it takes a little more.

"I have seen frost on the door hinges," he said.

The Bassett's home is an extension of an idea that more and more owners of conventional homes have been using to seal drafty windows in the wintertime. The Federal Energy Administration, in fact, says covering windows with plastic creates cheap and effective storm windows.

The plastic is usually installed inside the house, rather than on the outside.

Visitors who step through the wooden door of the Bassett's plastic shelter know they've stepped into a home, however unconventional. There are wood floors that are washed weekly, a cook stove, a table and chairs, a bed for Bassett and his wife, a pull-down bunk for the two older children and a basket for the baby. The house has two big rooms, but only one is being used right now.

The Bassetts also have an Aframe outhouse and a well.

"I can wash two loads of clothes and rinse them with 20 gallons of water," Lois Bassett said.

The kids take baths in the tub, but David and Lois hook up a coffeepot full of warm water and stand in the tub to take a shower.

"The kids have fun in the tub, but it's kind of squishy for us," Mrs. Bassett said.

The Bassetts get a newspaper on weekends and have a battery-powered radio to get news and music in the shelter, which they plan to replace with a hand-built cabin in the spring.

Response from neighbors also has contributed to the feeling of warmth in the Bassett home.

"The neighbors have welcomed us really warm," Bassett said. "Everyone on the road (five families) has visited us."

Bollworm threatens state cotton crop

Despite widespread storm damage to other crops, the U.S. Department of Agriculture had projected a cotton harvest of 2,530,000 bales this year — just 50,000 bales short of the state record set in 1974, says Jay Ericcson, spokesman for Calcot, the cooperative that processes 40 per cent of California's cotton.

The rain itself caused an estimated $25 million damage from discoloration in ripening cotton, an insignificant 3 per cent of the $800 million growers expect for the 1976 crop.

But brisk southerly winds accompanying the unusual tropical storm deposited unprecedented numbers of non-sterile pink bollworm moths in the southern and central San Joaquin Valley where almost all of California's cotton is grown.

Bollworms can devastate cotton fields. They lay eggs on the side of cotton bolls and the larvae then feed around the seed after hatching, destroying the seed and discoloring and weakening the cotton lint, explains Don Fiskaali, assistant leader of the state's bollworm eradication project.

"A week or so after the storm...we started bringing in massive numbers per day," Fiskaali says.

By the time bollworm traps were shut down in mid-November, state officials had counted 1,471 of the pests, four times more than were ever trapped before in the San Joaquin Valley, he adds.

A potentially ominous 1,257 non-sterile bollworms were found in Kern County fields with Tulare County contributing 192 and Kings County 19.

The prospect was more optimistic farther north where only three bollworms were discovered in Fresno County and none in Madera or Merced, Fiskaali says.

"The damage has not been apparent yet," he adds. "But we are concerned that the length of warm weather that followed the storm might cause another generation of bollworms which we will have to cope with next year. We figure that each moth lays 200 eggs."

Cotton experts use both an exotic method and a more mundane one to keep the pests from spreading.

While the cotton is growing from late spring through fall, airplanes bombard fields with more than a million sterilized bollworms each day. The idea is to thwart reproduction by getting the fertile pests that have blown into the area to mate with sterilized bollworms.

Because of the influx, funds have been budgeted to double next year's daily drop of sterile moths, dyed red so scientists inspecting traps can tell the sterile from the fertile.

Growers also are ordered by the state to plow all their cotton stalks underground after harvest to eliminate places for bollworms to multiply.

Compliance with plow-down regulations exceeds 90 per cent, but agricultural inspectors usually have to get after a few growers "who drag their feet," says Bob Edwards, assistant Kern County agricultural commissioner.

"It's kind of hard to convince people how serious this pest is when it hasn't taken over the area, causing terrific damage to the crop like it has in all other cotton areas where it has been found," Edwards says.

But an even more severe threat facing all of California agriculture — the long drought — could make the bollworm threat academic this year.

"We may not have any problem with bollworms because we may not have any water to grow anything with," Ericcson laments. "We need rain and we need it bad. We got through last year because we had good reservoir storage, but we don't have it now."

Ellis Island

From 1892 until 1954 the Plymouth Rock for at least half of the immigrants to the United States was Ellis Island in New York harbor. There the new arrivals were screened to determine whether they were entitled to land. Those who were too sick, too old or too weak to support themselves were turned back. In 1911, some 13,000, about two per cent, of the year's arrivals were turned away, according to National Geographic.

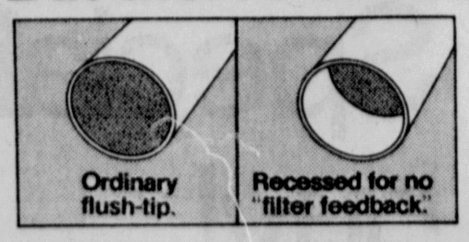
Any low-tar cigarette will give you a low-tar number. But there's something else that you should consider. We call it "filter feedback."



As you smoke, tar builds up on the tip of your cigarette filter. That's "filter feedback." Ordinary flush-tipped filters put that tar build-up flat against your lips.

And that's where low-tar Parliament has the advantage. Parliament's filter is recessed to keep tar buildup from touching your lips. So there's no "filter feedback." All you get is that smooth Parliament taste.

New coach Jim Jones and his assistants are working day and night trying to recruit players to Broncoville and the results of their labors will soon be known.

Instead of concentrating mainly on junior college players, Jones is going right after high school seniors. There should be some interesting conflicts with the JC coaches for the available talent not taken by Pacific 8 Conference schools or others in the big time.

The official visit begins at 9 a.m. with a meeting with Jones. Next is a short tour of the athletic facilities followed by a meeting with the assistant coach in charge of the player's position.

Next on the schedule is an academic appointment with administrators involved with the athlete's intended line of study. The day concludes with a final meeting with Jones. It is about a six-hour visit.

"It's interesting meeting people," the personable Jones said. "I love meeting people and I'm happy the way some of these athletes have stopped by after their official visit just to chat with us."

What about the returning players?

"It looks like we will have 28 returning players and I am impressed with the type of players we have here," he said. "It looks like our main strength is our defensive secondary. We have talent and experience in those spots."

New baseball schedule

CAL POLY'S BASEBALL SCHEDULE will be taking on a new look this season and it makes good sense.

The California Collegiate Athletic Association schedule will be reduced from 18 games to 12 with each team playing the three members four times (two at home, two on road) rather than six.

Instead, the four CCAA baseball members (Cal Poly Pomona, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, Cal State Northridge and UC Riverside) have entered an agreement with the three Division II independents (Chapman, UC Irvine and the University of San Diego) for an inter-locking schedule with the seven schools agreeing to meet each other on a four-game basis.

So, Poly's defending national champions will be involved in two races in the CCAA itself and the overall NCAA Division II.

At the end of the season, the selections of the Division II teams entering the NCAA playoffs from Southern California will be determined by the final standings of the new unofficial league.

The greatest thing about the clinic is the way Scolinos has his players doing all the instruction. Besides the youngsters learning a lot about baseball, the Poly players also get a good lesson on teaching.

A lot of Poly's baseball credit has naturally gone to Scolinos but Gary Marks, the assistant coach for many years, also deserves plenty of praise for his efforts in guiding the Broncos to the national title.

Ballard top forward

COLLEGE BASKETBALL NOTES:

Pomona product Greg Ballard of Oregon is the No. 1 scoring forward in Pacific-8 Conference history with 1,549 points to top the previous high of 1,478 points set by Doug Smart of Washington in 1959. In case you wondered, Marques Johnson of UCLA is currently fourth on the all-time list with 1,450.

If you're wondering about the NCAA playoffs, the Pac-8 champion will play an "at-large" team in the first round of the tournament at Pocatello, Ida., on March 12. If the Pac-8 champion wins its first round game, it will meet the victor of the PCAA-Big Sky champions game on March 17 at Brigham Young University at Provo, Utah.

Of the 40 starters on Pac-8 teams last Saturday, 17 were either freshmen or sophomores. Over the season, 12 different freshmen have started at least one game for Pac-8 teams.

Ganesha High and Garey, the only schools to win a San Antonio League basketball championship in the last five years, will renew their rivalry in the Viking gym tonight at 8.

SAL and Hacienda League teams will all play tonight instead of Friday night due to the President's Day school holiday, which will be observed Friday.

Garey (8-3 in league play, 14-7 overall) has won four of the last five SAL titles, but the Vikings will be hard pressed to repeat this season.

Their upset loss to Upland Tuesday afternoon left them in third place, two games behind leader Ganesha (10-1, 20-4) and one behind second-place Damien (9-2, 12-8) with just three games to go.

But the Vikings' fate is in their own hands. Not only will they host the Giants tonight, but they will turn right around and entertain the Spartans Tuesday.

Actually, though, Garey is already in pretty good shape as far as the playoffs go. The Vikes would clinch third place all to themselves with a win in any of their final three games, and if they can finish alone in third they would almost surely be awarded a playoff berth by the CIF office. (The only way they would not is if there were an unusually large number of second-place ties and three-way first-place ties in other 3A leagues.)

Tonight's other SAL games will send Damien, looking to break a two-game losing streak, to Pomona, Chino to Claremont and Upland to Montclair, all at 8 p.m.

Flu seems to be going around right now, and could be a factor in the last few games of the league season. Ganesha coach Gary Fulkerson, speaking hoarsely because of a bad case of his own, said after Tuesday's win over Damien that the flu has him a little worried.

"George (Hawthorne) has it now and James (Verdon) just got over it," he said. "I haven't been to school this week because of it."

Damien's Simon Bleeker, also down with the flu, played in a reserve role in that game, but clearly didn't have the stamina he brings to his usual starting role.

Tonight's Hacienda League games will find Alta Loma at Gladstone, Sierra Vista at Bonita, San Dimas at Walnut and Ontario at Royal Oak, all at 8 p.m.

Alta Loma (11-0, 21-3) enjoys a comfortable two-game lead with three HL games and appears headed for its second straight unblemished league championship.

But the Braves, fifth-ranked in the CIF 2A poll, will have to play their next few games without center Rich Davis, a 6-foot-10 pre-season All-America selection.

Davis strained the main ligament in his ankle when he landed after making a slam dunk last Friday and probably won't be able to put pressure on it for about three weeks.

Now that doesn't seem to threaten Alta Loma's league title hopes — the Braves beat second-place Walnut (9-2, 14-8) Tuesday, 61-51, even without Davis.

That victory gave Alta Loma 29 consecutive HL victories, a new league record.

"We're hopeful that Rich will be ready in time for the playoffs," said Braves coach Jeff McCall Wednesday night. "The average recovery time for this sort of thing is three weeks, and there are exactly three weeks between the time he got hurt and the opening round of the playoffs (Feb. 25).

In tonight's other games, Lutheran La Verne will visit Sherman and American Christian will meet Hesperia Christian at Victor Valley Jr. High, both at 8 p.m.

Four games are scheduled for Friday. Chaffey will visit San Gorgonio and Calvary Baptist will meet Riverside Christian at LeRoy Boys' Home, both at 7:30, and at 8 p.m. Ontario Christian will host Bell-Jeff and Webb will entertain Lutheran Orange.

Angry Kareem threatens fan

BUFFALO (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar did in the Buffalo Braves Wednesday night, and then threatened to do in a fan.

The big Los Angeles center had 30 points, a dozen rebounds, six assists and five blocked shots as he led the Lakers to a 105-90 win over the Braves.

When Jabbar left the game with 39 seconds to play, he headed toward the Los Angeles bench, stepped over it, and confronted a fan who had been heckling him all night. The man had been calling Jabbar names, including "Lew." Jabbar was born Lew Alcindor and later changed his name.

"I asked him if he wanted to take it up personally," Jabbar said later. "He didn't want to. The guy was on me all night. I decided not to take it anymore."

"That man was an uncouth loudmouth," said Los Angeles coach Jerry West. "It's difficult to listen to personal remarks."

"The key to the game was Kareem's dunk," said Laker Coach Jerry West, referring to some late dunk shots that Abdul-Jabber used to salt the game away.

West said he was happy to avert an 0-4 four-game road trip.

"I thought our defense was just tremendous and our rebounding was the reason we won," he said. "There's no question the win salvaged our trip. We left in first place and will return in first place. I guess that makes it a great trip."

The Lakers moved back into first place in the Pacific Division of the NBA, .006 points ahead of Portland.

The Braves were led by rookie Adrian Dantley, who got 12 of his 25 points in the third period. Randy Smith added 17

George Johnson, the hero in Tuesday's upset of the Philadelphia 76ers, scored 13 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and blocked two shots.

"The guys coming off the bench are easier to stop than Kareem," Johnson said. "He's just astronomical on offense. There aren't too many things you can do to prevent him from scoring. But this game, we had a cold shooting night and they were hot. That was the difference."

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Miller was discussing the problems attendant to playing a round of golf with former President Gerald Ford, Bob Hope and Sammy Davis Jr.

The foursome played before a massive, enthusiastic, shouting gallery that lined every fairway four or five deep, was constantly moving, clicking cameras and calling words of encouragement.

"It's difficult," Miller said. "There is no advantage to playing in that group."

Then he paused and a mischievious grin flashed across his face.

"Wait until (Billy) Casper plays with him on Saturday," Miller said of Ford's fourthround partner, a normally-placid veteran who angers only at crowd noises and camera clicks. "There'll be even more people. And Billy will finish with all his hair in his pocket."

Miller, who has won the last two Bob Hope Desert Classics, could do no better than a 74 in the company of the celebrities who drew a huge gallery to the Indian Wells Country Club for Wednesday's first of five rounds. This is a unique, 90-hole event that is spread over four courses in the desert resort where Ford plans his retirement home.

"That's about par, 74," Miller said. "That's what Arnold (Palmer) had at Pebble Beach" in another pro-am event with the former President as his partner last month.

While Miller was slashing his way to a two-over-par effort on probably the easiest of the four tournament courses, Rik Massengale, the runner-up last year, fired an almost errorless round of 64 in which he hit every green, missed only one fairway, didn't have a bogey and dropped putts totaling more than 50 yards in length.

"He saw I was lining up wrong," Rik said.

He made a correction and holed two birdie putts of 20 feet, two more of 30 and one from about 45 in establishing a three-stroke lead over Alan Tapie and Bruce Lietzke, the young man who has had such a sensational start this year.

Gary Edwards beats old mates

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Gary Edwards breathed a sigh of relief and said: "It was a good thing we had the big lead."

The Cleveland goaltender was treated to a 5-0 lead before the Los Angeles Kings, his teammates until a recent trade, made it close with a three-goal burst.

But the Barons prevailed 6-3 in the National Hockey League contest and Edwards picked up his third victory in four starts for Cleveland. The goaltender the Barons beat Wednesday night was Gary Simmons, one of the men traded for Edwards on Jan. 21.

"I felt like I was getting my moves back in the third period," Simmons said after noting it was his first game action since going to Los Angeles. "I was awful rusty in the first two periods and we lost the game on the third goal when I got caught out of the net."

Ralph Klassen, who later finished the scoring with a goal into an empty net, gave Cleveland a 1-0 lead with 38 seconds left in the first period. Then Dennis Maruk made it 2-0 early in the third period.

Al MacAdam, the other wing on the Maruk line, scored before the end of the second period on a picture pass from the little center. Then rookie Brent Meeke made it 5-0 early in the final stanza.

Finally, the Kings' Butch Goring broke the ice for the Kings 6:33 into the period, ending Edwards' skein of 108 minutes and five seconds of shutout hockey.

Goals by Marcel Dionne, his 32nd, and Glenn Goldup made it 5-3, but Edwards made a spectacular sliding save on Dave Schultz during an ensuing power play and Klassen's second goal put it away.

"Gary Edwards played well," said Los Angeles Coach Bob Pulford. "In fact, he played a tremendous game. He made several big saves, but the two that hurt us were on Marcel Dionne in the first period and on Schultz in the third period. If we could have gotten that goal, we'd have been right back in it."

Edwards said playing against his old team made no difference to him.

"I tried real hard, but that's like I do in every other game," he explained. "To me, it wasn't any different."

Bruins face rough tests

By The Associated Press

The top two rebounders in the Pacific-8 conference—forward Marques Johnson and center David Greenwood—lead second-ranked UCLA against the top field-goal shooting team in the conference tonight when the Bruins take on Washington State at Pullman.

Johnson has averaged 10.5 rebounds per game and Greenwood 10.2, but fourth in the conference is WSU's Steve Puidokas, who was injured and missed last Saturday night's loss to UCLA by a 72-59 score. He was expected back for this one.

This important game, and Saturday night's UCLA-Washington battle at Seattle, may tell whether the Bruins will have a "laugher" or a struggle as they aim for their 11th straight Pac-8 title.

But that's not the only action scheduled for this evening: 12 major games are on tap, including one pitting top-rated and unbeaten University of San Francisco against Nevada Reno in a West Coast Athletic Conference game in Nevada.

In other Pac-8 games, Oregon and Oregon State, both 5-2 in the conference, take on California and Stanford, respectively, in the Bay Area, while Southern Cal collides with host Washington.

Long Beach State can take a brief lead in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association race with a victory in tonight's game against San Jose State at Long Beach. The 49ers are 5-2 in the conference, tied with idle San Diego State.

Garey's Lofton Athlete of Week

James Lofton, Garey High's 6-foot-6 basketball center, has been selected the Prep Athlete of the Week.

The 6-foot-6 senior led the Vikings to a 98-84 win over Pomona and a 77-53 decision over Claremont last week. Lofton amassed 49 points, 39 rebounds, nine assists and seven blocked shots in the two games.

Lofton scored 29 points against Pomona — marking the second time in three games he had scored that figure — and came back for 20 against Claremont. He grabbed 14 rebounds in the first game and 25 in the second.

An All-San Antonio League and All-Pomona Valley (second team) selection in 1976, Lofton is averaging over 17 points per game this season.

Kaufman led the Tigers to a Citrus Belt League win over Pacific Thursday that gave Chaffey the CBL dual meet title, and then placed second in his weight division at the 16-team Edgewood Tournament. His record for the year is 29-2.

Lofton will be presented a plaque by the Pomona Elks Lodge at a dinner at the lodge on March 9. The Elks sponsor the Prep Athlete of the Week program.

Easy win for Text at 'Anita

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Text, a non-winner in a number of previous stakes races, roared to an easy six-length victory over unbeaten Cuzwuzwrong Wednesday in the $40,350 Santa Catalina Stakes at Santa Anita.

Ridden by jockey Donald Pierce and carrying level weight of 118 pounds in the race for 3-year-olds, Text stayed with the pacesetting Cuzwuzwrong for most of the race, and on the final turn the leaders bumped just as Text made his move.

Text, owned by the Elmendorf farm and part of an Elmendorf entry with Highland Light, raced 1 1-16th miles in 1:42 and paid backers $10.20, $4.40 and $3.60.

Text, bred in Kentucky, earned $24,600.

Cuzwzwrong, who began his string of victories last October at Santa Anita's Oak Tree meeting, was made the 8-5 favorite of the crowd of 21,117. Cuzwuzwrong was 2½ lengths ahead of Noric Prince and he earned $7,000 second money.

Leos beat Redlands

Undefeated Whittier explodes over Stags

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

Claremont-Mudd ran into the best team in the SCIAC Wednesday night and the result was an 88-64 loss at Whittier.

In other games, La Verne beat Redlands for the second time, 71-57, and moved into a tie for third place with the Stags, each with a 4-4 conference record.

At Whittier, the Stags battled the unbeaten (8-0) Poets evenly for the first 14½ minutes despite a poor shooting night. But after John Spinosa's two free throws made it 26-23, Whittier, with 5:28 left in the first half, the Poets exploded for 10 unanswered points.

C-M didn't score again for 3:36 and the first-place Poets were on their way . It was 40-29 at the half and Whittier came out and got its running game going after the intermission.

"We were up against the best team in the district," said C-M coach Dave Wells. "We tried to play a deliberate game and might have done better if we hadn't missed some shots.

"We didn't play very good defense and it really wasn't one of our best games. But our players never gave up. We had two good games last week. We're going to forget this one and concentrate on playing well Saturday night."

The Stags, who hit on 16 of 28 field goal attempts in the first half against Pomona-Pitzer Saturday night and 29 of 56 in the game, couldn't throw a pea in the ocean against Whittier.

C-M made only 12 of 36 shots in the first half and wound up with 25 for 73. Meanwhile Whittier connected on 18 of 28 in the first half and 39 of 78 for the game.

The Poets came out in a full-court press in the second half and the Stags had trouble getting the ball down the court.

In the first 5:49 of the second half, Whittier outscored C-M, 18-4, and extended its lead to 58-33.

"We should have gone to the press earlier," said Whittier coach Dave Jacobs. "We might have got our running game going sooner.

"C-M held the ball on us trying to slow us down. That's what all the teams are doing now. But we've got a great (fast) break and we finally got it going.

"This is the best team I've had here (at Whittier). We have a lot of talent and the players are all unselfish and easy to work with."

At La Verne, free throws made the difference. The Leopards hit only 24 of 61 field goal attempts but sank 23 of 32 free throws. Redlands made 26 of 54 field goal attempts but only five of nine free throws.

Former Bonita High star Stee Sly had eight points and five rebounds in a reserve role for Redlands. Stan Dill led La Verne with 21 points. Mike Sharp scored only nine points, but pulled down 16 rebounds.

At the end of the season, Councilman Bader proudly introduced his third place finishers to the mayor and the council; the li'l ones showered the officials with great affection thus adding a new dimension to " . . . government for the (little) people."

KICKIN' AROUND will keep you informed on the scores and upcoming games to be played during AYSO playoffs. At the present time we have not received the kickoff times and specific fields that will be used; hopefully, we will have that information for you during our next chat. In any event we encourage everyone to go see our youngsters in action. While it is unfortunate that every game has a winning team and a losing one in reality no one is a loser, for the kids have at least had a chance to play and enjoy one more game.

WHEN UPLAND HIGH COACH BILL CHENEY was asked for a preseason comment on his inexperienced team's chances he voiced the hope he might win half of the league games and accomplish upset wins over Claremont, Damien and Chino.

To this moment, Upland has done none of those things but as of last Monday, Upland's boys came through with their first victory of the season in taking fourth place Garey to the cleaners by 3-1.

All Upland goals were made by Val Fernandez, whose several seasons of development as an AYSO and AYSO all-star player seems to be standing him in good stead.

After 11 games, Upland has one win and four ties, totalling six points, leaving Cheney five points short of the hoped-for goal but no result in the league is as meaningful as Upland's first victory. It could turn the boys on. We'll be watching closely.

IT WAS A LONG WAIT for coach Bill Vaskis of Claremont whose team forms the tightest defense in the SAL. The wait was for goals . . . and the Wolfpack finally broke thru against Montclair with a 7-0 deluge . . . seven goals by seven different players . . . to give them third place one game behind Chino and two games behind Damien

LEAGUE LEADING DAMIEN INCHED PAST GANESHA by 2-1 to maintain the first place slot on goals by Pat Fahey and Ricky Garcia. Ganesha squandered a chance or two but scored late on a corner kick play..Kip Keough to Ruben Raya who took it out of the air and headed well.

AMONG THE 150 OR SO TEAMS IN THE CIF . . . our SAL is riding higher than it ever has with Damien ranked sixth, Chino ninth and Claremont tied for 10th. Garey, the most improved team in the SAL, is fourth in SAL, and 15th among CIF teams. Garey's powerful offense has scored as many as Damien but the South Pomonans' defense has not worked in concert with its scorers.

THE CIF PLAYOFFS will have MSAC football stadium as the site of action after the league season finishes on Feb. 18. Keep your eye peeled here for detailed news of who-plays-who-and-when. The top two in each of the leagues will go into the eliminations, plus other selected teams with deserving records. Both the 4A (includes our SAL) and the 3A (Chaffey's league) will use the MSAC turf. The big final is set for March 11 but the soccer circus of eliminations will also be there. No third place consolation games this year.

HOLLAND'S OLYMPIC TEAM will descend on the Southland for Feb. 27 and March 1 games . . . the first vrs. all-stars from the California and Greater L.A. League, and the second vrs. our USA Olympic team. The Olympic players will arrive in L.A. on Feb. 23 and begin training at UC Irvine campus under tutelage of World Cup coach Walt Chyzowych.

Many of the Olympic players are college all-Americans and some are playing under amateur contract with U.S. pro clubs. It will be interesting to see the Dutch team's style of play which has been heralded as the "Newest" style to-date. Writers around the world saw it initiated by the famous Dutch team, Ajax, who captured three successive European Cup titles with this so-called "total soccer" wherein all players are required to perform all duties..a system requiring the utmost in conditioning and surely in skill. Renowned players like Johan Cruyff and Johan Neeskens (now with Barcelona) anchored this manner of play and it was good enough to bring Holland to within one goal of winning the 1974 World Cup.

Most pro teams have adopted this style of play . . . but a better word is "adapted," because it can't be done unless the players have the talent to match the challenge of a bunch of players running all over the field in what sometimes looks like disarray. Brazil was doing it first with the wing-backs running loose in attack but Holland has put that running burden on all the players, including the goalie who must cover every inch of the extensive penalty area and is expected to come out and attack a loose forward. Sounds interesting.

Mounties tumble

Mt. San Antonio College's slim title hopes in the South Coast Conference basketball race were dimmed Wednesday night as Grossmont edged the Mounties 66-64 on two last-second free throws.

In other junior college cage action, Citrus' Mission Conference stock took a dip as Palomar bested the Owls 80-70, while Riverside City College held on to nip Chaffey 81-79 in another Mission contest.

Grossmont's John Boboff hit two charity tosses with no time remaining to give the Griffins the win over MSAC. The Mounties are now 3-5 in SCC play and 15-10 overall.

Earner Mays had a big night for MSAC with a game-high 24 points, nine rebounds and four blocked shots. Dick Rockwood added 13 and John Gagne 12 to MSAC's scoring. Grossmont was led by Bob Baxter with 20 points.

Owl forward Eric Childs had a big night with 25 points, and mates Bill Rutz (12) and Steve Barnes (11) also were in double figures.

LeRoy Fowler (16) and Roger Gubichuk (14) were also in twin figures for the Panthers. Ron Baldwin led RCC with 18 points, Jerry Potter adding 16 to the winners' total.

Sports briefs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Playing without its top two players, UCLA's tennis team, has defeated the University of San Diego 8-1 in a dual tennis match.

In the featured singles match Wednesday, Tony Graham of the Bruins beat USD's Mike Kellar 6-1, 6-1.

USD's only victory came in third singles when Par Svendsson, a transfer student from Sweden, beat UCLA's Drew Gitlin 7-5, 7-6.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Bill Walton worked out briefly with his Portland Trail Blazer teammates Wednesday, but he still is listed as doubtful for Friday's game against Atlanta and for the National Basketball Association All-Star Game Sunday in Milwaukee.

"Friday's awfully soon," the 6-foot-11 center said after the practice session. "If you come back too soon from an injury, you risk hurting other parts of your body. How well I know that."

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Artie McNickle of Sacramento, Calif., and Dave Shipley of Ogden, Utah, shot 71s and tied for the first-round lead Wednesday in the 54-hole American Golf Tour tournament.

The two were the only ones in the 137-man field touring the 6,769-yard course to break par 72.

NEW YORK — Apprentice jockey Steve Cauthen rode four winners at Aqueduct for the second consecutive day, bringing him 81 winners in 33 days of racing. In the $25,000 feature race, Jore Velasquez rode Rafael Escudero's Corbatera, $8.40, to victory.

HOUSTON — The Houston Rockets of the National Basketball Association were sold by James Talcott, Inc., of New York to Greenway Plaza, Ltd., of Houston for a price estimated between $6 and $7 million.

CHICAGO — Top-seeded Chris Evert advanced to third-round action in a $100,000 Women's Professional Tennis Tournament by defeating England's Lindy Mottram 6-4, 6-1.

MIAMI — Third-seeded Harold Solomon, Silver Spring, Md., scored a hard-fought 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 victory over Jiri Hrebec of Czekchoslovakia in second-round singles competition of the $50,000 Miami Grand Prix Classic.

MEXICO CITY — Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia won a 7-2 tiebreaker to take a 6-4, 3-6, 7-6 victory over Mexico's Roberto Chavez in the opening round of the Mexico City International Tennis Tournament.

It's a Racquet
Tennis event to debut

A NEW TENNIS TOURNAMENT, a new sponsor. That's the program coming up March 5, 6 and 12 at the Mt. San Antonio College courts for Class C and D players. Official name of the sponsor for this inaugural event is Tennis Tournaments, Unlimited, but there are two other, more familiar names involved. They are Jeannine Neuer and Mary Delle Welton, two area tennis buffs who have joined as TTU as an outfit to stage tournaments throughout the area.

Their first venture will offer men's singles and doubles, the same for women, plus mixed doubles in both classes. Fees will be $6 for each singles event and $8 per doubles team.

Entries and fees should be mailed to Tennis Tournaments, Unlimited, 337 S. Albertson St., Covina, 91723. The deadline is Feb. 23.

THE CLAREMONT CITY LEAGUES standings have a familiar look mid-way through the season's second 12-week cycle. Champs of the first cycle are the leaders in three of the five leagues, including Penny Daoust in women's singles, Herb and Kate Hoskins in mixed doubles and the Herb Hoskins-Rick Pawley-Jerry Bradley alternating partnership in men's doubles.

After six weeks the Hoskins' mixed doubles margin is only one-point, 81-80, over the entry of Dave Griffin-Pat Parsons-Sally Vogel. Farther back are the Ignacio Castuera-Enrique Perez-Linda Moore partnership, 73; and Rick and Monique Escudero in a tie with the Jerry Bradley-Rick Pawley-Pat Turner-Laura Schreibman unit at 67 each.

Hoskins-Pawley-Bradley head the men's doubles pack with 83 points followed by Steve Stires and Wes Davis with 79, Dennis Robbie and Daryl Churchill, 73; and Don McCutcheon and Paul Goodman, 71.

Daoust was an unbeaten frontrunner heading into this week's Tuesday women's singles action with 70 points to Judy Seay's and Pat Fiddes's 60 each, Penny Maag's 58 and Sandy Walker's 54. Mary Delle Welton led the B division and Keith Tullock was ahead of the Cs.

Dave Griffin, a new entry this cycle in the men's singles, is the top rung on that ladder. His 78 points give him a two-point lead over second-place Bob Lindemann while a three-way deadlock for third involves Mike Bechard, Warren Stallings and John Moore, 72 points each. Dennis Robbie, winner in the previous cycle, isn't competing this time around.

Three weeks of women's doubles competition finds Jeannine Neuer and Pat Fiddes leading the champs of the earlier cycle, Daoust and Kip Spear, 42-40. Down the ladder are Karlyn Cobb and Joan Dick 38; Virginia Meriweather and Nora Butler 36; and Nina Howard and Rose Savala, 36.

CHRIS EVERT AND SUPPORTING CAST will bring their show to the Los Angeles Sports Arena next week. Well, maybe something more than a supporting cast. Martina Navratilova has been threatening Evert's place atop the Women's Tennis Association computer list, having won three tournaments so far this year on the tour. One of those championships came about via a head-to-head conquest over Evert herself, although Chrissie evened that score Sunday with a straight-set win over the 20-year-old Czech expatriate at Seattle. "There was a question in my mind who was the best," Evert said after the latest meeting.

There still may be a question and whichever of the two resolves it in her favor next week will pocket $20,000 in first place money out of a $100,000 purse. That is, if one of the other 30 entrants doesn't shake the Sports Arena by winning the title for herself.

The tournament action begins Monday and for the first four days, there'll be a daytime schedule, starting at 10 a.m., and an evening program at 7, with doubles as well as singles eliminations on the agenda. Quarter-finals matches are set for Thursday and Friday nights and the semis will be played Saturday night. The finalists will meet for the singles crown at 1 p.m. Sunday, with the doubles finale to follow.

Channel 2 will show semis action on a delayed basis at 10 p.m. Saturday and the finals at 3 p.m. Sunday. Seeded behind No. 1 Evert and No. 2 Navratilova are No. 3 Virginia Wade, No. 4 Margaret Court, No. 5 Rosie Casals, No. 6 Dianne Fromholtz, No. 7 Wendy Turnbull and No. 8 Kris Shaw.

NEXT BIG PRO TOURNAMENT for Los Angeles will be the Pacific Southwest in late March. That's right. The Pacific Southwest. In March. The idea may seem as perverse as celebrating Labor Day with an Easter egg hunt, but Southern California's most prominent tennis affair is getting booted up the calendar.

Up to now the hallowed old tournament has been a September landmark of the tennis world, trailing by a week or so the U.S. national championships at Forest Hills. But the year-round competitive schedule has proliferated tremendously for the top pros in recent years. Jack Kramer and other Pacific Southwest officials say the players are tired by the time their event comes around, thus resistant to tournament invitations. So they have made the drastic move to the earlier time slot on the Grand Prix circuit, when they anticipate the players will be fresh and eager.

The dates for this, the 51st annnual Pacific Southwest, will be March 26-April 4. The site again will be UCLA's Pauley Pavilion and the prize money will total $150,000, a $25,000 increase over last year. Among the early entrants are defending champion Brian Gottfried, Arthur Ashe, Guillermo Vilas, Roscoe Tanner and Raul Ramirez.

MARCO NOVELO, FORMER WEBB SCHOOL player living in Claremont, has won himself another championship. He claimed the Boys 18 singles crown at the Whittier Mid-Winter Juniors tournament last weekend at Friendly Hills Country Club, defeating finals opponent Morris Strode of El Cajon, 6-4, 7-6.

BEGINNING ADULTS AND CHILDREN, intermediate adults — there'll be instruction for players in those categories in La Verne starting Saturday. The beginning children will meet at 9 a.m. at Bonita High, the adult neophytes at 10 a.m. The intermediate class goes early — 8 a.m. Both adult classes will cost $12 per person, the children's session $9. Each class will run seven Saturdays. Reservations can be made with the La Verne Recreation Department, 2039 Third St.

IN SAN DIMAS, A 16-WEEK INSTRUCTION program will begin Feb. 19 at S.D. High. The schedule calls for a 9 a.m. class for beginning to intermediate adults and an 11 a.m. session for youths of the same level. The Parks and Recreation Department will accept registrations at City Hall through next Monday. Fee is $8 per person.

'Pack kickers blank Chino

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Claremont High kept alive its chances for a San Antonio League soccer title Wednesday afternoon as the Wolfpack downed Chino High 2-0 at Sumner Park.

With the victory, Claremont climbed into a tie with the Cowboys for the second spot in the SAL standings. Both schools are now 7-2-3 in SAL play.

Claremont and Chino still have slim chances of tying Damien for the top spot. If either the Wolfpack or the Cowboys win their two remaining scheduled contests while Damien loses both of its games a tie for the title would result. Damien is now 10-1-1 in league but the Spartans still have to face Claremont in the final SAL game of the year next Friday.

"We have two more games to go now and if we can get someone to knock off Damien there's still a chance for us," noted Claremont coach Bill Vaskis. "Anything can happen in the league right now."

Claremont broke open a scoreless duel early in the second half as John Mack scored on a breakaway. His shot skipped just by a lunging Chino goalie. Phil Banks gave Claremont a 2-0 lead late in the contest as Mack helped set up the score.

Vaskis added," I thought we performed better in the first half despite scoring two goals in the second half. We were playing more of a ball control game today while Chino tended to play a long ball game. And I think that's what won it for us."

Banks surprised the Chino goalie with a short shot into the right corner of the net. The Chino defenders had given up as the Cowboys anticipated the referees blowing the play dead. Chino believed that Claremont was off-sides on the play.

"It was a clean, aggressive game throughout," commented Chino's Ben Kramer. "We made one mistake which costs us a goal. The kids on the second goal claimed Claremont was off-sides but I've told them repeatedly to keep on playing if a foul is committed and there is no whistle."

It was a rough physical contest as numerous players on both sides were knocked off their feet in the heat of battle.

GOALS: Claremont — John Mack, Phil Banks.
ASSISTS: Claremont — John Mack.

Upland matmen finish unbeaten

Upland finished the San Antonio dual meet wrestling season with a perfect 5-0 mark Wednesday, as the Highlanders disposed of Garey 56-6.

In other SAL mat action, Montclair embarrassed Ganesha 77-0 and Chino downed Claremont 55-12.

Garey, which finished 2-3 in SAL duals, had Victor Lizama win by decision at 115 pounds and Mario Olmos win by decision at 123 pounds, but after that it was all Upland. The potent Highlanders amassed seven pins in route to the easy win.

In a Hacienda League match Wednesday, Ontario wrapped up that loop's dual meet title by whipping Gladstone 68-6. Ontario finished at 6-0-1 in league, one game ahead of Alta Loma.

SAL mat finals are slated for Friday night at Chino, and a 5:30 p.m. start on the Cowboy mats.

Broncos to unveil volleyball squad

The Broncos open the California Collegiate Volleyball Conference season Tuesday hosting UC Riverside at 7:30 p.m. in the women's gym.

Smith's squad, which was formed only during the past month, lost in set play 3-2 at UC San Diego last Friday night. In trading off winning sets, San Diego won the first set 15-5. The Broncos came back next 15-8, then San Diego won 15-10, Cal Poly won 15-8 again and San Diego clinched the victory 15-6 in the final stanza.

Schiro selects Claremont-Mudd

Upland's Steve Schiro, who was a starting defensive back for Chaffey College last season, will be staying in the valley to continue his education and football career.

Schiro, a Damien High graduate, will be attending Claremont-Mudd in the fall, where he is expected to participate on the Stags' football team. Schiro, who played one season at UC Riverside before performing at Chaffey, will have two seasons of eligibility as a Stag.

One other Panther gridder also signed a letter of intent recently. Quarterback Jim Garcia, a Bishop Amat product, will be playing for the University of Southern Utah next season.

Bonita girls nab cage win

Robin Hayden led the way with 15 points for the Bearkittens, while Nan Matza added 13. The win pushed the Bonita season mark to 3-1.

Reds' opener a sellout

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds announced Monday that their season opener against the San Diego Padres has been sold out, marking the earliest date in history that the traditional opening game of the National League baseball season has been a sellout.

Tigers fall

RIALTO — Chaffey High dropped a 62-43 Citrus Belt League basketball decision to Eisenhower High here Wednesday night.

The defeat lowers the Tigers' CBL slate to 6-7. Overall, the Tigers are now 8-14.

Eisenhower was playing without its star guard, Ron Lott, who is recovering from a skiing accident. However, his absence did not seem to bother the Eagles, as brother Roy Lott (16), center Mike Moses (15) and forward Mark Bookhammer (11) took up the scoring slack.

Top point-getter for Chaffey was center Randy Wenzel with 11. A.J. Collosimo came off the bench to add 10 to the Tiger cause, but it wasn't enough to erase a 27-15 Ike halftime lead.

Chaffey (43)	Eisenhower (62)
F — Reinhardt (6)	Occidentine (7)
F — Zeman (0)	Bockhammer (11)
C — Wenzel (11)	Moses (15)
G — Mann (1)	Lott (16)
G — Moyer (2)	Newley (3)

Scoring subs: Chaffey — Collosimo 10, Johnston 6, Kohler 5, Weyness 2; Eisenhower — Ashley 4, Sauceda 4, Robinson 2.

Chaffey	6	9	15	13	—43
Eisenhower	9	18	20	15	—62

Total Fouls: Chaffey 15, Eisenhower 18.
Fouled Out: Chaffey — Zeman.

Poly swim team will host SLO

The Cal Poly Pomona men's swim team faces its biggest meet of the season Friday at 2 p.m. when it hosts arch-rival Cal Poly San Luis Obispo.

"San Luis Obispo finished second in the conference last year," said Bronco swim coach Bob Yamate. "We have already lost to Cal State Northridge, which should win the conference again this year. Our meet with San Luis Obispo should decide second place, so for that reason I feel it is our biggest meet of the season."

Yamate's team was impressive against NCAA Division I opponent Pepperdine University last Friday, losing 58-54 in a meet that the Broncos could have easily won.

The Broncos fell behind 7-0 after the first event, the 400-yard medley relay. Both relay teams were clocked in at 3:56.2 in this event, however a judge's ruling said that Pepperdine had finished first. A decision in favor of Cal Poly instead would have given the Broncos a 61-51 advantage for the meet. The loss dropped Cal Poly Pomona's dual meet record to 3-6.

Ron Nyeholt of San Gabriel was impressive against Pepperdine, winning the 200 yard backstroke in a time of 209.9, also winning the 200-yard individual medley in 2:06.6.

Bill Sweeney won the 50-yard freestyle for the Broncos in a time of 22.8 seconds, a half-second quicker than the second place finisher from Pepperdine. Brian Dineen tied the school record he set earlier this season in the 500-yard freestyle, clocking in at 4:52.1, more than nine seconds faster than his nearest rival.

Chorale sets opening concert

The Ronfeldt Chorale, conducted by Louis Ronfeldt, will give its opening concert of the season at the Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational, at 4 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free, but donations will be accepted for scholarships.

Daniel Bridston, accompanist and soloist, will be featured. He is the latest recipient of the Ronfeldt Music Scholarship.

Tenor George Stout will sing "Five Mystical Songs" by Vaughn Williams, and baritone Kenneth Orr will sing "Eri tu" from Verdi's "The Masked Ball." Mezzo Carla Pfeiffer, soloist with the Upland First Methodist Church choir, will sing "Que sais tu" from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" and "I Know a Naughty Fellow" from "Cosi Fan Tutte" by Mozart.

The chorale will sing two selections from Vivaldi's "Beatus Vir" and Hanson's "Song of the Middle Ages." The program will close with two spirituals, "There Is a Balm in Gilead," with Helen Selby as soloist, and "Ain't Got Time To Die," with Thorp as soloist, and Wilhousky's arrangement of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

'The Tempest'

Poly plans Shakespeare

The Cal Poly drama department will present Shakespeare's "The Tempest" in the University Theater at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and Feb. 17-19 and 24-26.

Director James L. Martin calls "The Tempest" a perfect play. "Romance, fantasy, comedy and drama are held in perfect balance," he says. "All of these elements interweave and are an integral part of the play. It also offers the most colorful theater we have; some of the most vivid language, and lines which almost everyone will recognize."

Martin says the intent of the Cal Poly production is to recapture for a modern audience the effect the play had on the audience of Shakespeare's day, including the magic, the music and the wedding masque.

"The Tempest," written toward the close of Shakespeare's career, begins with a storm at sea and a shipwreck and ends on a note of serenity and joy. It is a romantic fantasy on its simplest level. The story of a wise magician, his beautiful, unworldly daughter, a gallant young prince, and a cruel, scheming brother, it contains all the elements of a fairy tale in which ancient wrongs are righted and true lovers live happily ever after.

Designer Michael Devine said, "The stage sets, and the costumes by Bente Mitchell, have been designed to enhance the exotic, isolated feeling of the action, while still incorporating the reality of the sea and the natural elements."

Gordon Robertson has developed special effects for the show including thunder, lightning, fog, and objects which appear and disappear magically. The development and construction of these staging devices serve as his senior project.

Tickets are $2.50 and $2 for students. All seats are reserved. Ticket information and reservations can be obtained at 598-4546 or 598-4549.

Cars can last

Cars can usually last ten years or 100,000 miles without major overhauls, says the Highway Users Federation, but not without proper maintenance.

Sharing the ride isn't exactly a new idea.

Times have changed, but the idea still holds water.

Doubling up can make a big difference. To you. To all of us.

MR. AND MRS. HY AULT

La Verne couple feted at party

Mr. and Mrs. Hy Ault of La Verne celebrated their golden wedding anniversary recently with a luncheon in the Mirror Room of the Huntington-Sheraton Hotel in Pasadena, hosted by their son, Harris Ault, of Sacramento.

The luncheon was attended by 75 friends and relatives of the couple including Mrs. Ault's sister, Rebecca Altschuler, of Philadelphia, Pa. and Mr. Ault's sisters Fannie Weinstein of Rockaway, N.Y., and Bertha Zevin of Reseda, Calif., as well as his brother and sister-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Louis Altshuler of Pasadena.

The Aults came to Pasadena in 1938 from Philadelphia and from 1941 to 1954 operated Ault's Interior Decorating Studio. Mrs. Ault taught school in Bassett, from 1954 to 1971. When the couple retired in 1972, they moved to the Fountains, a mobile home park in La Verne, where they presently reside.

Both worked for B'nai B'rith in Pasadena for many years in numerous volunteer positions and both served as presidents of the men's and women's groups. Mr. Ault served for many years in the work of the Anti-Defamation League and the Los Angeles Commission on Human Relations.

GOSH
Chalk Talk from Griswold's Old Schoolhouse

Plenty on the board for this week. Visit us to take advantage of our February Valentine Specials.

Brides-to-be and perennial brides take note: During Feb., Cook's Nook offers all Noritake china at 10% off. A good way to start your collection or add to what you have! Also on special is the Corning Creative Glass Collection—great for gifts! They even have those hard-to-find replacement wicks for the Flame Glo Candle Trio.

What started as a hobby is now a nice business for Jerry Nelson—he runs Old Schoolhouse Coins, which now offers a variety of stamp supplies for philatelists, too. In fact, Jerry tells us that Jane Woehler has joined the shop as an associate, specializing in stamps—Jane has ben collecting for over 50 years (we hear she started VERY young!) and lends a tremendous amount of expertise to this new area of the store. Valentine specials here feature coin jewelry and cut-out coin jewelry by Rick Hayes.

Incidentally, we have some very unique (FREE) lectures available, offered by some of our personnel—topics vary from crepe or wok demos, fabric stretching and teas of the world to hobby talks on miniatures and antique dolls, learning about using color in your decor, or jazzing up your bathroom! Call our PR dept. if you'd like more info or want to schedule a talk.

Don't forget: Take your sweetheart to dinner for Valentine's Day! Ramon's Restaurant will offer a special—a complete Mexican meal for $2.75...and to go with your dinner, have a double Margarita for the price of a single!

Young organists from the area will present a free concert on the GOSH patio - Sun., 1:30 to 4:30. Take a Sunday stroll through the Art Fair and shops, and listen to these talented youngsters.

DICK ROGERS

On a wintry day, feathery flakes of snow may fall. Snow comes from clouds, just as rain does.

Snowflakes are made of many tiny droplets of supercooled moisture that freeze around a speck of dust in the frigid air. Each one is formed separately in a special pattern we call a crystal.

Since a snowflake is a crystal of water, it always has six sides. No two snow crystals are exactly alike.

Some crystals are long needles. Others are flat. Sometimes the snow crystals cling together and form woolly tufts. Often you will be able to catch some and see their lacy patterns before they melt.

MONTCLAIR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

PRESENTS

RODEO EVENTS

BAREBACK BRONC RIDING Usually, Bareback Bronc Riding is the first event at a Rodeo. Cowboys with strong arms and a keen sense of balance enter this contest. They ride with one hand holding onto the "riggin" — a thick leather surcingle fitting over the horses' withers, with a leather "hand hold" attached. The horses are free to jump and kick, sometimes even spin, and the cowboys try to lean back and maintain spurring rhythm along the animals neck and shoulders raking the legs up and down with dull spurs. This event is an eight second contest in which both the horse and rider demonstrate their ability.

CALF ROPING Calf Roping is one of the two timed events, and the object is simple — get the fastest time and win the first place money. In calf roping the cowboys are mounted on fast, well-trained Quarter horses. Man and horse work as a team, and the goal is to rope the running calf which is given a predetermined headstart from the chute-then dismount, run down to the calf and throw him to his side, and tie three legs with a short piece of rope called a "piggin" string, which the contestant carries in his mouth. The whole feat can be accomplished sometimes in less than 10 seconds. Consistency is the key for this event.

SADDLE BRONC RIDING Saddle Bronc Riding requires the use of a special saddle which must conform to PRCA specifications. It's called a bronc saddle, naturally, or, sometimes, "an Association saddle." Saddle Bronc Riding is the cornerstone of rodeo: it's the classic event, and the men who compete in it have usually been well background-ed in breaking colts, or at least have spent time on ranches riding saffy mounts on cold morn-ings. Staying in the saddle requires more balance and timing than brute strength. The rider holds onto a soft, woven rein attached to the horses' halters, and try to maintain a smooth spurring stroke throughout the ride. In saddle bronc riding the cowboys spur in an arc, from the neck to the back of the saddle. Bronc riders get disqualified if they "blow a stirrup", that is, let one foot slip out of the stirrup. Saddle Bronc Riding is an eight second event.

STEER WRESTLING Steer Wrestling is an event invented strictly for rodeo, and has no actual ranch background. After all, no man in his right mind would jump off a perfectly good horse, running wide open, and try to grab a running steer by the horns and twist him on his side. The "hazer" plays an important part in this event. He's the man mounted on the other side of the steer and tries to help keep the animal running straight enabling the contestant to jump. Times in this event can be amazingly fast, sometimes four seconds or less.

BULL RIDING Bull Riding is usually the last event at rodeos. Many con-sider it the most dangerous, most exciting of all sports events. The odds are one cowboy, usually weighing about 150 pounds, mounted on one bull weighing close to a ton. The cowboy tries to ride the animal with one hand firmly attached to a rope encircling the bull behind his shoulders. Bull riding is scored pretty much like bareback and saddle bronc riding, except that cowboys don't lose points by not spurring — in this event, just hanging on for eight seconds is job enough, and the bulls are extremely fast and agile for their size. Many will jump and kick and spin at the same time. If a cowboy manages to stay pretty much in control of the ride, and if he rides a good enough bull, he'll win money.

TEAM ROPING Team roping is an extra event seen at many rodeos. Two cowboys mounted on horses attempt to throw a loop around a steer's horns, and another loop around the heels. Time is called when the steer is caught on both ends with the two ropers pulled back and facing each other. Naturally, some animals are going to be easier to win on than others, but that's rodeo.

GIRLS BARREL RACING The smartly tailored and brightly clad ladies on their sleekly groomed horses have become a colorful addition to Rodeo in the past two decades. Barrel Racing is a timed event. The contestant is allowed a running start into the arena with the time beginning as soon as the horse's nose reaches the starting line. Running to Barrel No. 1, the horse and rider pass to the left, completing an approximately 360 degree turn around it; running Barrel No. 2 passing to the left with a slightly more than 360 degree turn around it; and a sprint on to Barrel No. 3, passing to the right and doing another 360 degree around it. From that point, it's towards the finish line. The riders are skilled equestrians who spend hours practicing to produce a smooth and balanced ride.

Cal Poly coed is Miss Montclair

Cristina Sierra, a 20-year-old Cal Poly coed, was named Miss Montclair for 1977 at coronation ceremonies held at the Montclair Theater Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Sierra, who is studying communication arts at college and someday plans to work in the field of public relations, was elated at her selection.

The pretty brown-haired, brown-eyed girl will serve as hostess for the City of Montclair and the Montclair Chamber of Commerce during the next year.

She will represent the city at civic and community functions, including parades, award ceremonies, special events and the openings of new commercial and industrial businesses in the community.

Cristina succeeds Raisa Ferrer, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Ferrer, as Miss Montclair. Miss Ferrer served during 1976 and participated in the city's Bicentennial and 20th anniversary activities.

The new winner, Miss Sierra, expressed gratitude at her selection. "It is an honor to represent Montclair, and I will do my best to represent it as honorably and faithfully as I can," she said.

When asked what her first official duty for the city would be, she laughingly replied, "Learning to ride a horse." The remark was in reference to the city's upcoming "Western Daze" event which starts Monday.

Miss Sierra, an employe of United California Bank, plans to graduate from Cal Poly next June. After graduation she hopes to continue her studies in graduate school. A native of New Mexico, she was a varsity cheerleader and a member of the homecoming court during her senior year of high school.

She entered Cal Poly with honors and has been named to the dean's list for scholastic achievement every quarter since her entrance. She is actively involved with the Journalism Club, Sigma Delta Chi, and the Public Relations Student Society of America.

The other three contestants were:

—Judy Luethold, a 17-year-old senior at Montclair High School who will graduate in June. She has resided in Montclair for 12 years with her parents, Al and Irene Luethold.

This year, she is a member of the Backpacking Club and a reporter on the campus newspaper, The Clarion. She has previously been active in Campus Life, S (Service) Club, and Volunteens. She hopes to enroll in either Chaffey College or Cal Poly upon graduation from Montclair High and will major in general education with the hope of eventually becoming a pre-school teacher.

—Theresa Avigliano, 19, has lived in Montclair for seven years. A 1975 graduate of Montclair High School, she plans to enroll soon in Fredonia State University in her native state of New York, and seek a degree in sociology.

While at Montclair High, she participated in student drama productions, including "The Last Talent Show." In 1975, she enrolled in a psychiatric aide program at Pacific State Hospital through the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program. She received a proficiency award and certificate of achievement for her participation and is qualified to serve as an aide in any state hospital in California.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rocco Avigliano.

—Peggy Lee Thomas, 19, has lived in this West End city for 16 years with her parents. She is currently employed at McDonald's Restaurant in Ontario and attending Cal Poly. She hopes to someday become a recreation administrator.

During her years at Pomona Catholic Girls High School, she was active in the Girls Athletic Association and was first catcher on the softball team. She was a finalist in the California Interscholastic Federation of Southern California and received a three-year perfect attendance pin from the National Honor Society.

Miss Thomas has also been active in 4-H Club activities and has won the San Bernardino County medal for food in 4-H and raised the champion hen for the Los Angeles County Fair in 1976.

She was also chosen as the most spirited during her senior year at Pomona Catholic.

MISS MONTCLAIR

Cristina Sierra, 20, a Cal Poly student, is congratulated by Tony Zangri, chief judge, following her selection as Miss Montclair. She will reign this year.

Stock contractos 'born and bred' rodeo men

Rodeo Stock Contractors, RSC, Inc., was contrived in late 1971 — a result of a "fence top" conversation that RSC's general manager Bob Cook had with several "born and bred" rodeo men.

They felt that rodeo in California had become bromidic and was sadly in need of a competitive stock contractor to supply outstanding well conditioned livestock to the numerous rodeo committees throughout California.

Seasoned rodeo spectators have become used to seeing the nation's top rodeo athletes in competition with rough and rank rodeo stock. However, many contractors were now utilizing stereotyped stock, both predictable and easier to handle, losing in the process the spectator pleasing action of explosive wild bucking animals.

RSC's inception began with the purchase of 50 bucking horses and 25 bulls from the Barmby Ranch in Lockeford.

RSC will provide the livestock for the PRCA sanctioned rodeo to be held at the Montclair High School.

After 50,000 miles of wear, nothing was worn out.

When the editors of Road Test magazine put a Peugeot Diesel through a 50,000-mile test-drive, they came up with some startling conclusions. Among them:

"The concept of a lifetime automobile is a great one, and if any car should be on top of the short list of those cars, the Peugeot 504 Diesel is it."

While that's the opinion of only one group of automotive experts and not a guarantee, it is, nonetheless, expert opinion. For a complete reprint of the Road Test report, stop in and pick up a copy. And take a test-drive yourself.

Mayor boosts Western Days

Wearing Western garb at this week's City Council meeting, Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair asked those in the audience to pass the word about the Western Days activities in the city next week.

Hayes reported that the city had issued an official proclamation relative to the Western celebration planned by the Montclair Chamber of Commerce Monday through Feb. 20.

Bob Keenan, manager of the chamber, said that the main event of the week will be a rodeo sanctioned by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association. The rodeo will be held at 1 p.m. at the Montclair High School stadium Feb. 19 and 20 and feature nearly 300 professional riders in the various events.

He jokingly remarked that "local residents who are crazy enough to ride a broncing horse" will also take part in the first rodeo in the valley held outside the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

Approximately $3,000 in prize money will be awarded.

On Monday morning, Mayor Hayes, Joe Pugh, president of the Montclair chamber, Miss Montclair and other city and chamber officials will kickoff the week-long event at the chamber office, 10250 Central Ave.

A second highlight of the week will be a mile-long parade at 10 a.m. Feb. 19. Hayes advised equestrians to "all go out and get your horses for a ride in the parade."

Other activities include a steak and baked bean luncheon at Henri's on Wednesday; and a contest for city residents and workers who will be dubbed the best dressed cowboy and cowgirl.

Anyone wanting additional information on any of the events should call the chamber office, 624-1280.

TEETH GRITTER

Chamber invites entries

The categories of participation include bareback, saddle bronc and bull riding, team, calf and steer roping, and girls barrel racing. There is a fee for participation in each division.

The rodeo will be held at 1 p.m. Feb. 19 and 20 in the Montclair High School stadium. It will feature professional participants from the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, Inc.

Western Days feature

'Gentle giants' to join parade

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Padua Hills Riding Ranch is nestled beside Potato Mountain. Yucca trees line the pathways, cactus grows wild, birds flutter in the natural habitat, squirrels scurry across the trails.

It is a peaceful and clean setting, reminiscent of Western days of old when the state was laced with hidden valleys and mountain regions that man had not trod upon. What could be a better home for "the gentle giants?"

The gentle giants are the famous breed of horses known as Clydesdale. Three of these large draft horses — probably the only ones in Southern California besides the Main Street Clydesdale at Disneyland — reside on the ranch nestled in the Padua Hills of Claremont. The ranch totalling about 2,400 acres is leased by Tom and Dolly Geer from H.H. Garner of Padua Hills Corp.

The Geers owned and operated a 1,000-acre ranch for 30 years in the South Hills area of West Covina prior to moving to the Claremont location four years ago. They are lovers of the land and the gentle animals that abide in the hills. Their speech is slow and soft, nearly whisper soft. They greet visitors, young and old, with warmth and words about the background of the Clydesdale, other breeds of horses and tales of Western folklore.

Geer purchased the three Clydesdales from the famous Randall Ranch in Palmdale four years ago. The ranch is the largest supplier of cast horses, buggies, carriages and the like for movies, television series and commercials depicting Western scenes.

Prince is the oldest of the Geer Giants at 12 while Mike is eight and Doc, 6. They stand 18 hands tall and weigh 2,000 pounds each. The size of the Scotland breed of draft horse is massive and awesome, and the history is a long one.

"The Clydesdales are originally from Scotland. They were used by knights in armor in days of old and were of a very romantic breed of horses," Geer said. "The Clydes are one of the largest of the draft breed — horses that pull wagons, big horses. They're the tallest of all horses and have the highest step and more action than the other draft breeds. They also have an excellent disposition. That's why they're known as the gentle giants."

Prince, Mike and Doc have been used in several Western series and Walt Disney movies. The trio is the same breed as the internationally acclaimed horses that are the trademark of Budweiser. It takes four men to transport and hitch up two to a wagon. The shoes for the majestic animals are made in England and are the largest outfitted for any horse in the world.

The Clydesdales have been featured in a number of activities and have been instant successes wherever they appear. Geer transports them to the annual open house at the University of California at Riverside for rides around the campus quad for visitors and alumni. In 1976, 1,372 people participated in the wagon rides in six hours.

Prince, Mike and Doc also took part in the Bicentennial Western celebration at Stallions Spring, the resort 20 miles north of Tehachapi that is complete with golf course, lake, lodge, tennis courts, horseback riding and trails. The giants delivered Santa Claus in a wagon to the Claremont Christmas parade in 1975 and were also on hand for the Claremont Fourth of July celebration and parade that year. School and college groups from throughout Southern California visit the ranch to see the Clydes and participate in the trail rides.

"We've got some beautiful trails up here," Geer said, pointing to the expanse of scenic backdrops and paths. "It's beautiful country. Padua Hills is really beautiful. H.H. Garner is a wonderful man. He's kept this property as wilderness for the last 50 years and it's really something to see."

GENTLE GIANTS — Tom Geer, owner of the Padua Hills Riding Ranch in Claremont, controls the reins on two of his three Clydesdale horses, Mike on the right and Prince at left. The "Gentle Giants" have been used in parades and promotions throughout Southern California. The rancher and his wife, Dolly, purchased these two horses and a third named Doc four years ago from the Randall Ranch in Palmdale.

Last season, the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association with headquarters in Denver, Colo. sanctioned nearly 600 rodeos in more than 40 states and four Canadian provinces. An estimated 14 million spectators paid to see the contests, and in the last several years, more and more rodeos have been televised for national viewing.

The sport was born out of the great cattle drives of a 100 years ago when impromptu bronc riding or roping contests provided the only entertainment for cowboys riding the trails for months at a time. Rodeo remained an unorganized western pastime for 40 years after the cattle drives had died out.

The first professional rodeo organization was the Cowboys Turtle Association, founded in 1936. The CTA was revamped and renamed the Rodeo Cowboys Association in 1945. Recently the name was changed to Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, mainly in an effort to use initials and avoid any misunderstanding with Radio Corporation of America. Last year, the PRCA rodeos paid cowboys a record $6 million in prize money.

Every PRCA-sanctioned rodeo has five standard events, three bucking or "rough-stock" contests and two timed events.

Usually, bareback bronc riding is the first event at a rodeo. Bareback riding, along with the other two bucking events, saddle bronc riding and bull riding, is an eight-second contest.

Saddle bronc riding requires the use of a special saddle which must conform to PRCA specifications. This is the cornerstone of rodeo. It's the classic event and usually the men who compete in it have been well backgrounded in breaking colts or at least have spent time on ranches riding salty mounts on cold mornings. Staying in the saddle requires more balance and timing than brute strength.

Bull riding is usually the last event at rodeos. Many consider it the most dangerous. The cowboy tries to ride the animal with one hand firmly attached to a rope encircling the bull behind his shoulders.

The two timed events are calf roping and steer wrestling, and the object in both is simple — get the fastest time and win first place money. In calf roping, cowboys are mounted on fast, well-trained horses.

Steer wrestling, like bareback and bull riding, is an event invented strictly for rodeo, and has no actual ranch background. As with calf roping, the horse plays an important part in success or failure.

Team roping is an extra event seen at many rodeos. It's a timed contest, where two cowboys mounted on horses attempt to throw a loop around a steer's horns and another loop around his heels.

CO-CHAMPION

Morty Henson, reigning world champion saddle bronc rider from Mesquite, Tex.. rears out of the chute on a bronc named Rawhide. Henson tied for the 1976 saddle bronc world championship with Mel Hyland of Salmon Arm, British Columbia.
